NO. 202—SEVENTIETH YEAR VICTORIA, BRITISH COLUMBIA, FRIDAY, AUGUST 3, 1928 TWENTY-TWO PAGES

BLAZING PLANE LANDS IN SEA; FLYERS RESCUED

Three Canadians Will Attempt to Bring 400 Metre Race Back Home

Wilson, Ball, and Phil Edwards Given Even Chance to Win Final—Three Dominion Representatives Come Through in Trial Heats With Splendid Victories

Joe Wright and the Argo Crew Take Sculling Preliminaries Easily

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 2.—Will world supremacy in the 400-metre race of the ninth Olympiad follow the 100 and 200-metre championship to Canada? Tomorrow three representatives of the Dominion race with nine competitors in the semi-finals of the 400 metres and six of the twelve will enter the final later in the day. Observers consider the Canadians at least an even chance to win the final.

W. A. Wilson, of Montreal, and James Ball, of Winnipeg, are among the favorites, and they are supported by Phil Edwards, representing Hamilton Olympic Club. All three came successfully through two sets of trials today, but the fourth Canadian entrant in the field of seventy-five was eliminated. F. W. MacBeth, of Hamilton, trailing the field in his second trial. Wilson pressed Ray Barbati, of the United States, to the best time of any recorded in the trials, 48 4-5 seconds, running a good second to the American in the second trial. Edwards won both his races, his best time being 49 1-5 seconds, while Ball won both his trials and showed 49 2-5 seconds in the last one.

Capt. Franco's Hydro-Airplane Badly Wrecked

MADRID, Aug. 2.—Captain Ramon Franco's hydro-airplane Numancia, damaged in a forced landing off the Portuguese coast yesterday, was being towed by a sailing boat today from Huelva to Cadiz. It is understood that the flight will be renewed, but that the start will be delayed until some time in September.

HERALDED as a great boon to the business men of the community, the first all-Canadian air mail route in the West will be opened between Victoria and Vancouver today by the British Columbia Airways, Mr. Ernest Eve, president of the company, announced last night.

NOTED FINANCIER VISITOR IN B.C.

Sir Edward Mackay Edgar, of London, Looking Over His Interests in Province

VANCOUVER, Aug. 2.—Looking over his varied interests in British Columbia, Sir Edward Mackay Edgar, Canadian-born financier, who controls large projects in London, is a visitor in Vancouver. He is accompanied by Lady Edgar.

Leap to Cowcatcher Saves Auto Driver

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Aug. 2.—S. P. Brown saw that he could not manoeuvre his automobile out of the path of an oncoming train, so he opened the door of his car and waited the approach of the thundering engine. When the latter was within a few feet, he jumped to the engine's cowcatcher and watched his automobile smashed to kindling. After the train had been brought to a stop, the quick-thinking Brown stepped off unharmed.

U.S. Talks to Switzerland

JUDGE J. B. PAYNE, head of the Red Cross in the United States, is here seen making the first transatlantic telephone call to Switzerland. The Red Cross official talked for five minutes to headquarters of the organization in Geneva.

Mexican Abbess Alleged Head of Terrorist Group

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 2.—Attorney-General Correa Nieto, in a statement issued today, asserted that Jose de Leon, assassin of General Alvaro Obregon, belonged to an organization headed by the Abbess Maria Concepcion Acabado de La Lala. The attorney-general, who is supervising the preliminary judicial examination into the slaying, issued this statement:

LABOR SCENTS A CONSPIRACY

DUAL KINGDOM IS FORESHADOWED

BELOGRADE, Aug. 2.—Two parliamentary bodies met in Yugoslavia yesterday, one at the national assembly in Belgrade, and the other at Zagreb, capital of Croatia, again bringing up the possibility that the Triune Kingdom, created in 1918, may evolve into a dual kingdom patterned after the late Austro-Hungarian Empire.

ROADS PREPARE TO MOVE CROPS

Thousands of Box Cars and Giant Engines Marshalled for Record Movement

WINNIPEG, Aug. 2.—With the 1927-1928 crop year terminating on August 1, preparations are practically completed for the movement of the new harvest, which will commence within the next two weeks. The Canadian Pacific Railway is gathering grain cars for distributors to country elevators. The requirements this year are far in advance of the previous record. More than 40,000 box cars are being set aside for the movement. Great engines are being distributed to divisional points, a total of seventy-nine being this year loaned by Eastern lines to aid the allotment already for Western grain movement, thirteen of these being new locomotives of the Mikado type, with both superheaters and feed water attachments.

Both War Flyers

Major Idzikowski is thirty-seven years of age, and became a pilot in the Russian army in 1918. During the war he won several military decorations and became a master of heavy bombing planes. After the re-establishment of Poland he joined the Polish air force in 1919. He distinguished himself in the war with the Bolsheviks and obtained numerous decorations. He is the technician and navigator of the pair.

JUGOSLAVIAN PARLIAMENT IS DISRUPTED

On the Croatian deputies present, Stefan Raditch, leader of the Croatian peasant party, was seriously wounded, and his nephew, Paul Raditch, was killed in trying to shield him. Deputy Basaritch, another Croatian, also was killed.

BOYCOTT BELGRADE
Since this episode, the Croats have refused to return to Belgrade. Their first demand was that Parliament should be dissolved and new elections held, but this was refused and the Croats have remained at their capital, Zagreb.

Today's session at Belgrade passed off quietly. The members who attended were dressed in black, as were also the cabinet members.

Dr. Ninko Perich delivered a speech in honor of the two dead Croats, to whom he referred as "valuable comrades."

Dr. Perich said that, like all the country, the Government condemned the assassination and calmly awaited the judgment of the courts.

RAILWAYMEN BALK AT PROPOSED WAGE

LONDON, Aug. 2.—Shipment of the British railways are balking at the agreement for a wage reduction of two and one-half per cent, provisionally agreed to as a means of alleviating the financial ills of the railways. Executive representatives of the unions of eighteen crafts employed in the shops today declined to accept the reduction and declared they would not rest content under the "dictation" of the larger railway unions.

SIDELIGHTS ON WAR PUBLISHED

New Installment of British Diplomatic Documents Touch on Ex-Kaiser

LONDON, Aug. 2.—Important sidelights on the origin of the war are supplied in a new installment of British diplomatic documents covering the period from 1904 to 1906, issued under the title, "The Treading of the Easterns." The most notable among the documents contained is a long secret memorandum by Sir Eyre Crowe, former counselor of the British Embassy in Berlin, dated January 1, 1907, examining the German policy and action in Morocco, and South Africa during the Boer War, also the German attitude to the efforts to improve Anglo-German relations.

Sir Eyre wrote: "The successors of Bismarck apparently regard it as their ultimate purpose to extract valuable concessions from England by offensive bluster and persistent nagging." He compares the attitude to Britain to that of "a professional blackmailer." Attached to some documents are notes penned by King Edward VII showing that he had no illusions regarding the German feeling for Britain. "A case of bullying against Germany," he said, "is a case of bullying against Britain."

The documents include a pen portrait of the ex-Kaiser written in 1906 by Sir Frank Lascelles, the British ambassador at Berlin, describing the monarch as impulsive and fond of jokes which sometimes were taken seriously by those who did not understand them. On one occasion Sir Frank made known to the Kaiser a communication of an agreeable nature. The Emperor, marked, "The noodles seem to have had a lucid interval."

Asked whether he wished such a message conveyed to the British Government the Kaiser translated the remark into diplomatic language and told the ambassador to say that he had received the message with great interest and satisfaction.

Sir Frank summed up with the conclusion that the Kaiser thought a "savage-rattling, moustache-twirling" attitude befitted the ruler of a mighty Empire, but in reality was animated by the most pacific sentiments.

Troops Mobilized

WARSAW, Aug. 2.—Newspapers published details tonight of an alleged concentration of Lithuanian troops along the Polish border. Various points were specified, at which it was charged that four infantry regiments, a battalion of artillery, a cavalry regiment, two aviation squadrons and a detachment of irregular infantry had been stationed. The reports were accompanied by bitter denunciations of Lithuania.

MAN CHASED BY EAGLE

While taking home peats near Leverburgh, Scotland, recently, John Kerr was chased by an eagle. When the large bird began to hover above him, as if ready to strike, Kerr shouted at the top of his voice to frighten it, but the eagle came nearer and continued to follow him for a considerable distance. Kerr took refuge behind a peat stack and watched the bird's efforts to locate him. It failed to do so, and finally soared high and disappeared. As it is the first eagle seen in that part of the country for forty years, residents are watching for it with the hopes of bagging it as a souvenir.

AIR MAIL TO VANCOUVER OPENS TODAY

great interest to collectors, particularly those used on the first trip of the regular service this morning. The postage stamp will indicate that the stamps were used on the first trip of the regular service. A small picture of the Ford monoplane flying over the water between the two cities is the central point of interest. Underneath are printed the words "Victoria Vancouver." The name of the company and the words "Air Mail," together with the denominations of the stamps, five cents, also appear. Two shades of blue are combined with white in the color scheme.

Air mail will close at the post office at 10:10 o'clock in the morning and at 3:30 p.m. in the afternoon. Mr. G. H. Gardiner, postmaster, announced last night. It will be rushed to the airport by automobile and will leave here on the plane at 11 o'clock. Forty-five minutes later it will arrive at the Lansdowne Park airport and with an airspeed of 100 miles an hour, it will be in the hands of the Vancouver Postoffice ready for delivery.

VALUE TO BUSINESS
Mr. Gardiner emphasized the importance of this delivery to Victoria business men. Letters which miss the midnight boat, and thus the morning delivery in Vancouver, will be able to be sent by air mail, and because of the great speed of the service, they will be ready for sorting and distribution in the Mainland city shortly after noon.

The 3:30 p.m. mail, Mr. Gardiner pointed out, will also be the first of the business mail. Victoria letters mailed via air mail in the afternoon will be in the Vancouver Postoffice at 5:30 p.m. and will be ready for delivery in the Mainland city shortly after noon.

The afternoon mail from Vancouver will be in the Victoria business man's postoffice box before 6:30 p.m.

AFIXING OF STAMPS

As soon as colored stickers bearing the words "Via Air Mail" are available here, they will be issued so that they can be affixed to the envelope to assist in the quick sorting of mail. Until they are available, those who use the air mail are cautioned to write "Via Air Mail" in large letters on the envelope. The air mail stamp, in accordance with departmental regulations, must be affixed to the back of the envelope.

LAST MAN IN BIG JAIL BREAK TAKEN

SEATTLE, Aug. 2.—The last of six men who accomplished a sensational jail break here three years ago, is in jail in San Francisco. This was said by the local police officers tonight when they identified George Costello, twenty-eight, one of four men held for an Oakland robbery who was taken by the local police in connection with the $42,000 robbery of the Nanaimo Bank, when they escaped with four others from the county jail here. The prisoners locked three guards and three civilians in cells and forced a Seattle candy salesman to drive them to Everett.

preliminary singles heat with D. H. F. Gunterby, of Holland, and the Argo Club eight, from Toronto, won their heat from Denmark by two lengths. Wright's time for the 2,000 metre course was 7 minutes 55 seconds. The Diamond Sculls holder was master of Gunterby after gaining a slight lead at the start, being content to finish a length ahead, rowing only twenty-four strokes to the minute at the finish.

BIG LEAD AT FINISH
The eight-oared crew were behind the fast-stroking rowers for the first 500 metres, but passed their opponents at the half way mark and had a big open water lead when they finished in the fairly fast time of 6 minutes and 28 seconds.

The Canadian rowers placed fifth in the international standing, and the Canadian flag was sent to the top of the secondary Olympic pole three times in token of victories by James Trifunov, Regina, third in the 123-pound class; D. P. Stockton, of Montreal, second in the 174-pound class, and Morris Letford, of Montreal, third in the 158-pound class.

Good weather and water favored the trials of the single sculls, the course on the St. Lawrence being gaily decorated with flags of all nations.

COLORFUL FIGURE OF NORTHERN SEA CALLED BY DEATH

SEATTLE, Aug. 2.—John Backland, sixty, one of the most colorful figures of the northern seas, died at his home here today after an illness of several months. His son, Captain John Backland, Jr., is now on the Arctic Ocean, sailing the trading schooner C. S. Holmes, which his father commanded for many years on annual voyages to Arctic villages.

LARD PARTY ARRIVES ON ANNUAL TOUR

Traveling in families is also a feature represented in the group, as represented in a grandmother, mother, father and four children, and also a mother, father and five children, the former from Toronto, the latter from Montreal.

Travel is no longer a matter of age. One veteran lady confesses to be beyond the eighty-year mark. Another is seventy-nine.

It is the fourth year Dean Laird has conducted a tour across Canada in succession, and the fifth of his annual tours to this city, as in 1924 his visit with the Canadian Teachers' Federation here led to the inauguration of this series of itineraries to see Western countries.

VANCOUVER BRIDGE SCHEME APPROVED

Federal Minister of the Interior Promises to Question Grant

VANCOUVER, Aug. 2.—Footings for the southern approach of the proposed Burrard Street bridge over False Creek, on the Kitsilano Indian reserve, together with the extension of Cedar and Cornwall Streets, were approved by Hon. Charles A. Stewart, Federal Minister of the Interior, in an interview with a delegation from the city council today. A request from the delegation for a grant from the Federal Government of $300,000 was promised consideration.

It was explained to the minister that the Provincial Government was willing to give $100,000, and that the city was willing to give $100,000. The minister pointed out that the Indians were averse to leasing the property, but were ready to consider selling it. He would consult with his colleagues on this question.

FORMER SPEAKER'S MARRIAGE SURPRISE TO LONDON FRIENDS

LONDON, Aug. 2.—J. H. Whitley, former Speaker of the House of Commons, surprised Londoners by announcing this morning that he was to be married to Miss Helen Clarke, daughter of J. A. Clarke, of Hunsington, the marriage took place at 11 o'clock in the morning at St. Martin's church, in London.

TOWN HARD HIT

CHESTER, Ont., Aug. 2.—A terrific windstorm, accompanied by severe disturbances followed by a rain, assumed proportions of a deluge, and caused damage to the extent of several thousand dollars here this afternoon. Trees were uprooted and branches broken, buildings roofed, hydro, telegraph and telephone poles blown down, while stores were flooded.

400-FOOT FALL FATAL

BRITANNIA BEACH, Aug. 2.—John C. Packham, Vancouver, who was killed here yesterday, fell 400 feet down a ramp into which he was helping to dump ore. The young man was prominent in rowing, rugby and basketball. He had been employed with the Royal Bank in Vancouver, but came here to work in the office of the Britannia mines. He was a student of aviation.

FLYING MEN NEED SENSE OF RHYTHM

War Pilot Says Learning to Play Violin Is Good Preparation for Successful Work in Air

HANDLING PLANE NO WRESTLING MATCH

By DON BROWN
(Copyright, 1928, by The North American Newspaper Alliance)

NEWARK - ELIZABETH AIRPORT, Aug. 2.—When I came out here to learn to fly, and write and draw my experience, I decided to keep the real purpose of my training under my hat as far as the airport people were concerned.

I imagined that some of the hard-boiled pilots might look suspiciously on a student afflicted with artistic or literary inclinations.

I didn't know then that Koehl, the German pilot of the Bremen, spends his spare time painting landscapes.

Today, in the air on a training flight, my instructor, Bill Hughes, complained through the earphones of the heaviness of my touch on the control stick.

"Try to be more rhythmic," he said. "Everything in flying is rhythmic. Try to get the big rhythm of things and cut out the little jerky, snappy stuff."

That phrase, "Try to get the big rhythm of things," astonished me. The last time I heard it was from a distinguished American artist, who taught drawing at the Art Students' League, in New York. I remembered when I started to draw in his class with a snappy, tricky style, the artist urged me on to a larger and more rhythmic technique.

In a Paris art school I heard the same thing expressed as, "Seek the grand line."

NO WRESTLING MATCH
And today when I tried to jerk the plane smartly into a bank and a turn, Bill howled mournfully through the earphones of the advice about rhythms followed.

After this lesson, I was sitting on the running board of a car, making a drawing of a plane on the ground, when Bill happened along.

"I see you draw," he said. "You ought to develop a good light touch on the stick. If you have a sense of rhythm, I can teach you to fly much more easily."

"I had a student last year who was making beautiful, smooth turns after three or four hours in the air. One day when we landed, after he had been doing some very good flying, I asked him, 'What kind of a musical instrument do you play?'"

He looked astonished and said, "Why I play the violin. But how in the world did you know?"

However, these qualities are not all that is necessary by any means. Bill says. There is no doubt that a flyer must be physically sensitive and very much alive, but he must also have a strong control over these sensibilities. This combination of good qualities is not so common, I believe, and that is why practically everybody is drilled with an instinctive and deep-rooted admiration for men like Lindbergh, who, in his kind, who finally achieve great distinction in this game.

FLYING QUALITIES ADMIRABLE
Some of my intellectual friends complain that interest in flying and flying, especially in connection with "stunt" flights over the oceans, is over-done and is mostly the work of the newspapers. I do not believe this is true.

Riding in a bus from the airport on the day the Germans were supposed to reach New York, after their take-off from Ireland, I saw strangers who would never have spoken, turn to each other and ask, "Have they heard from the Germans yet?"

That night, in a waterfront saloon, I heard three British sailors, who evidently still held the wartime animus against the German nation, discussing the flight. One of them said, "I 'opes the German blinks make it," and the others agreed.

Tonorrow I plan to question some of my fellow students and find out just why they are learning to fly; whether their motives are romance and adventure, or something more practical.

(In his next article, Don Brown tells of men going into aviation.)

Britain Expects To Make Profit
On Beam Radio

LONDON, Aug. 2.—Questioned in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon concerning the annual receipts of the beam wireless station, Sir William Thomas, Postmaster-General, stated that the combined services to Canada, Australia, South Africa and India had not been all working for a full year.

Based on the current earnings, the gross receipts of the British postoffice from these services which it operates, could be reckoned as $2,350,000 annually and a profit before charging depreciation or interest on capital of about $1,060,000 annually might be expected, he said.

BILL LIBERALIZING MARRIAGE LAWS IS DEFEATED IN LORDS

LONDON, Aug. 2.—The Archbishop of Canterbury yesterday making his last appearance in the House of Lords as Primate of the Church of England before his impending retirement, obtained the defeat of a bill which the Church had opposed, but which in some higher courts had slipped through the Commons and reached the third reading in the Upper House.

The bill would have amended the marriage laws to permit marriage between uncles and aunts and their nephews and nieces. In the last few years many ineffectual attempts had been made to pass such a measure, and recently it was put through a third House of Commons late at night. Subsequently it passed two readings in the Lords, where the division, however, were very close.

The vote last night was 26 against and 25 for the bill.

POTATO MEN
DISSATISFIED

Administration of Marketing Act Condemned at Meeting in Ladner

LADNER, B.C., Aug. 2.—Dissatisfaction with the provincial Potato Marketing Act was expressed at a meeting here last night of about 300 people, comprising farmers, wholesalers and lawyers. Some proposals were made to have the act scrapped, but the majority was against summary action. A committee of three was appointed, representing Surrey, Langley and Delta, to confer with the Mainland potato board of directors, with a view to bringing about a more satisfactory administration of the act.

C. W. Craig, K.C., who was invited to explain the act outlined the steps which would have to be taken by any persons wishing to have the act repealed. Such an action would go so far as the Privy Council probably.

Colonel A. W. McLellan, of Surrey, criticized the committee of directors on the grounds of ineffectiveness.

Thomas Scott, Vancouver wholesaler, urged the farmers to give the act a long trial, as did A. Littlehills, A. Brimley and W. Clarke, wholesalers.

H. S. Woods, counsel for the nine Delta Chinese, whose convictions under the act recently were quashed, explained that this action had prevented the Chinese from testing the validity of the act. The Chinese farmers, he said, were dissatisfied with the administration of the act rather than with the act itself.

They bought an automobile at Winnipeg and drove to Regina, Moose Jaw and other places. At Gull Lake, Sask., Bennett disappeared, leaving the car and a large sum of money for Loucks. The latter went to Calgary, where he was with new companions, including a young woman, and treated them lavishly, buying diamond rings and other jewelry for the Chinese. He went to Seattle, where another car was bought, which he took to Vancouver, paying duty of $900.

Loucks had $8,874.

Man Arrested in Vancouver for Bank Robbery Committed in Ottawa, in Court

OTTAWA, Aug. 2.—Charged with being an accomplice in the theft of $7,000 from the Standard Bank of Canada, William Loucks, arrested recently in Vancouver, today was committed for trial. W. D. Bennett, teller of the bank, is being sought by the police.

Investigation showed a shortage in Bennett's accounts. Detective J. P. Downey made a statement claiming to have been made by Loucks relating to incidents of the trip from the capital in company with Bennett.

Accused denied he was aware that the money in Bennett's possession had been stolen until the pair reached Winnipeg, when the teller showed him a number of packages of money and advised he had taken it from the bank.

BYE-WITNESSES
Frederick Moss, 2473 Burdick Avenue, said he saw Smith at the hotel standing on the northwest corner of Belleville and Government Streets and saw Smith and Sangster talking to a woman. Shortly after he saw Sangster and Smith talking to a woman on the side of the face. Smith jumped onto the lawn, with Sangster following him. The accused then struck Smith with a blow on the head, and Smith fell to the ground. Sangster kicked Smith while the latter was lying on the ground, witness testified. When Sangster first assaulted Smith, witness claimed he heard the woman cry out "Oh!"

The third witness was A. B. Schofield, another taxi operator, who was standing on the corner of Government and Belleville Streets at the time of the alleged assault. Schofield corroborated the testimony given by Moss.

Styles Thomas Sehl, accountant for the Empress Taxi & Sightseeing Company, known as the Gray Line, said he saw Smith at the hotel following the alleged assault. Smith was bleeding, he stated, from the nose and mouth, and had a large welt on his chin. Later he accompanied Smith to the scene and found a number of Gray Line folders scattered across the sidewalk, the hedge and onto the lawn, all inside the Empress Hotel property.

Witness asked Smith whether he and Sangster had any words, and Smith replied "No."

DEFENCE IS RESERVED
With the case for the Crown closed, Mr. Lowe, defence counsel, asked for an adjournment until this morning, in order that arrangements for bail for the accused could be made.

City Prosecutor C. L. Harrison said he wanted to know whether the defence proposed calling any evidence at the preliminary hearing.

"No," replied Mr. Lowe. "The accused reserves his defence."

When asked by Magistrate Jay whether he had anything to say before being committed for trial, Sangster answered, "All I have to say is that I am absolutely innocent of this charge."

His Honor then adjourned the case until this morning, when the accused will be committed for trial.

ENGINEERS AIDED

Engineering Institute of Canada
Launches New Weekly Paper to Aid Employment Bureau

Engineers mark another epoch in their history in Canada, for under date of July 16 appears the first number of The E.I.C. News, the official organ of the Engineering Institute of Canada, a weekly publication to appear each Thursday, excepting the first Thursday in the month.

A feature of the publication is the page devoted to opportunities for engineers in connection with the Employment Service Bureau, a feature which has been the cause of so much sickness, many weak, thin, nervous, dyspeptic people today no time getting a bottle of it. Today those same people are positive in their stories that Husky is the first medicine which ever did them any good.

Some say they no longer feel puffed up after the second or third bite of food. Others find they wake up every morning now feeling fine and ready for the hardest kind of a day's work. But the most astounding thing of all is the way Husky seems to put solid, stay-there flesh on skinny bodies, round out thin, spindly legs and fills out sunken cheeks.

The demand for technically trained men has increased to such an extent in Canada that there is an urgent need for facilities to meet the requests for such men so as to secure

CABINET-MAKING

It is not in accordance with the principle of constitutional government that any outside influence should intervene when a Prime Minister, or a Prime Minister-to-be, is choosing his colleagues in office. The privilege is the Prime Minister's of choosing his own colleagues, without interference from any quarter. All that is necessary is that they should be acceptable to the Crown, which, in the case of British Columbia, is to the Lieutenant-Governor as the representative of the Crown. It is a well-known fact that if the colleagues of a Prime Minister differ with him in the selection he has made they must either acquiesce in the choice or resign their own offices.

A Prime Minister in choosing a cabinet is fettered in one way. The Parliamentary Government says that, "the position of most men in Parliament forbids their being invited to the Cabinet; the position of a few men insures their being invited. Between the compulsory list, whom he must take, and the impossible list, whom he cannot take, a Prime Minister's independent choice is not very large; it extends rather to the division of the cabinet officers than to the choice of cabinet ministers. Parliament and the nation have pretty well settled who shall have the first places; but they have not discriminated with the same accuracy which man shall have which place."

There is no precedent for public interference with a Prime Minister's choice of his colleagues. Such interference is wholly unwarranted, whether it implies who shall or who shall not be chosen. It is well to remember this, because, before long, a new cabinet will come into existence in British Columbia. That cabinet is constitutionally constructed as the choice of the Premier, who, in the case under consideration, will be Dr. Tolmie. He is constitutionally susceptible to no interference from any quarter. He is under no obligation to pay attention to advice from any source, and the more especially where such advice is against his making any particular choice.

Dr. Tolmie possesses the confidence of the people of British Columbia who have given him a mandate to form a Government. The people as a whole would never dream of dictating the choice of his colleagues. That is his own prerogative, and we are persuaded that it is one he will exercise with every wisdom, and without paying attention to any advice which, whatever it may be, is wholly unconstitutional, the more especially when it develops into what might be characterized as pressure.

A CHURCHMAN PATRIOT

Around a plain, nameless tomb in Canterbury Cathedral, a group gathered on July 9 to lay a wreath upon it in memory of the great churchman patriot who died that day just seven centuries ago. Archbishop Stephen Langton's name will always shine bright in English history as one of those who, in the momentous hours of the nation's life, withstood the political tyrant. While it may be true, as Dr. Jenkins, the Lambeth historian, wrote in a recent Guardian, that "few would now venture to acclaim him as the leader 'who more than any other won for us the Magna Charta'; yet in the days of a domineering King the Archbishop valiantly took his stand upon the earlier English constitution, proved the old charter of Henry I, assisted the barons in forming their confederation, signed the new charter, and himself presented it to the monarch."

The more recent studies of his life lifts Stephen Langton still higher in the roster of England's great men. "In the light of constitutional history," writes Professor Powicke in his Ford lectures, "he seems to take a place beside the great constitutional lawyers, or Somers or Burke." Undoubtedly ranking as one of the foremost men of his age, and "perhaps the greatest of our medieval bishops," is the judgment of the late Professor Davis of Oxford. J. R. Green truly said, half a century ago, he "was a man who by sheer weight of learning and holiness had risen to the dignity of cardinal and whose after career placed him in the front rank of English patriots." Although it is but a tradition that the stone in Canterbury Cathedral covers the mortal remains of Stephen Langton, his name is engraved upon the British heart as one who, in a tumultuous age, was courageous for the liberty of the people; a great churchman who was also a great patriot.

CANADA'S OLYMPIC WINNER

It will be too bad if, as is already hinted, Percy Williams, the great Vancouver sprinter, who pulled off the double event of the 100 and 200 metres at the Olympic Games, is induced to complete his education in the United States. If this happens, it may be taken for granted that he is lost to Canada. The United States bends every energy to secure the services of all those who excel in any form of sport, provided inducements can be offered, and no doubt many inducements of a semi-professional character are now being pressed on those who have control of Percy Williams' future. Dispatches have already stated that it is the intention of the youngster to enter the University of Washington. This announcement would hardly be made without some basis of truth. It is only within the last month or two that the United States has appropriated Jimmy McFarlin, the game little Vancouver lightweight, and now that country is in the process of endeavoring to have the future of Percy Williams bound up with American interests.

In a matter of this kind the choice rests with the boy and his family. He is a Vancouver boy, and in these latter days Canada is losing too many of her sons, and in every line of endeavor

When the news of Williams' dual victory came to the country the hope was entertained very widely that he would compete for Canada in another, and perhaps two more, Olympiads. This hope must go a-glimmering if he decides that his destiny lies in the United States, which, in sports, as well as in so many more serious endeavors in the game of life, regards this Dominion as a training ground from which it attracts the best. Before Percy Williams and his family decide what the boy's future should be, every effort ought to be made to retain his services in the country to which he belongs. He has brought fame to Canada on the field of athletics, and the Dominion on this account should keep him as her own.

PRE-ELECTION STATEMENTS

Before and during the recent provincial election campaign, the Liberal Government of British Columbia announced that it had secured the return of the Railway Lands to the province by the Federal Government. Now comes the announcement that negotiations covering the return of the Railway Belt and the Peace River Block to provincial control will be left entirely with the forthcoming Toimie Government. It was always known that the claim made by the Liberals was a premature one; indeed, this was pointed out long ago. The announcement, which now comes from the Liberal Government itself, is an intimation that pre-election statements do not necessarily have to be believed.

It will probably eventuate before long that the "negotiations" regarding a sale of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway to the Canadian National Railways have not advanced beyond the realm of a mere proposal which the Dominion Government or the Canadian National Railways, or both, had promised to examine at their leisure. The saving grace of the situation is that the people of British Columbia took the statements made by Liberal platform speakers with a grain of salt.

OLD TUNES IN DEMAND

"I wonder why they don't play something more up-to-date," I thought one lunch hour recently while listening to a street band which had played in succession "Dolly Gray," "Bluebirds," "The Honeyuckle and the Bee"—those popular songs of a quarter century ago. So when I emerged into the street I asked the leader, who explained that he had found it much more profitable to confine himself to these erstwhile favorites. The response that they awakened in the middle-aged was greater than given to the youth of the day in modern jazz tunes. "Looker-On," in The London Daily Chronicle.

PLEASURE CRAFT

Newly painted and varnished bright.
Punts and dinghies and light canoes.
Life and gleam in the Spring sunlight
On the banks of the silver Ouse.

Long and drear has the winter seemed,
Looked away on the boathouse floor.
Damp and cold when the pale moon beamed
Down on them through the slatted door.

Are they glad to be free again;
Free to join in the river's fun;
Feel the kiss of the wind and rain
And the warmth of the summer sun?

Do they dream of the happy days,
Drifting down where the quiet stream
Threads its way through a leafy maze
By sweet islands where lilies gleam?

Leafy nooks where the willows trail—
Shady corners and hidden bowers;
Stolen kisses behind the veil—
Love and laughter among the flowers?

Do they dream of the sunset sky,
Mantling earth in its golden hue;
Twilight hours when the swallows fly
Meadows drenched with the rising dew?

Or the thrill of the straining race,
Silver spray on the flashing oars;
Joy of life in the flying pace
And the cries from the crowded shores?

Mavis, Iris and Rose-Marie,
Punts and dinghies and light canoes—
Who can tell what their dreams may be
As they lie by the silver Ouse?

EPIGRAM

Because I am idolatrous and have brought
With grievous supplication and consuming prayer,
The admirable image that my dreams have wrought
Out of her swan's neck and her dark abundant hair:
The jealous gods, who brook no rivalship but their own,
Turned my live idol marble and her heart to stone.
—Ernest Dowson.

If we do our best, if we do not magnify trifling troubles; if we look resolutely, I will not say at the bright side of things, but at things as they really are;
if we avail ourselves of the manifold blessings which surround us, we cannot but feel that life is indeed a glorious inheritance.—Lord Abercromby.

The best of prophets of the future is the past.—
Lord Byron.

Note and Comment

By R. B. D.

Premier Hertzog, the Nationalist political leader in British South Africa, has made a speech which defines very clearly his attitude to the British Crown. He says: "We could do away with all kings tomorrow, and in a measure, abolish the Kingship, but the English in South Africa would protest and many of the Dutch would support them. The former might take up weapons and rebel. They might force South Africa to remain under the King. I do not think Britain and the other Dominions would resort to force. But a danger is present in public opinion in this land. When all the South Africans are one people could decide not to recognize the Kingship."

M. Henri Bourassa, the Nationalist leader in Canada, also has lately defined his position to the Kingship. He says: "As with the old English 'Liberal School of Thought,' I have never ceased to believe that Canada's destiny is independence, complete and unfettered. The only difference between his views and those of Mr. J. S. Ewart is, perhaps, that I am less in a hurry to cut the last ligaments. I am in favor of letting matters take their natural course and letting Canadians educate themselves in the practice of manhood and liberty."

There is only one inference to be drawn from the statement of Mr. Hertzog. He is in favor of an independent South Africa. He is not satisfied with an independent South Africa under the British Crown. He would abolish the Kingship. But there is an obstacle in the way, the loyalty to the throne of all the English and a part of the Dutch elements in South Africa. The English might fight, and a part of the Dutch might fight alongside of them, to retain British connection. When public sentiment is a unit in favor of pulling down the British flag, the Premier of South Africa will be one of the first to apply his hands to the hammers.

In the case of the Canadian, M. Henri Bourassa, there is no necessity for drawing any inference. He makes his position clear beyond peradventure. Like the old English Liberals (and he might have said like some of the young English Liberals too), he believes in Canadian independence, complete and unfettered. If there are many fetters on the limbs of Canadians at present, they are not very galling and they do not make a sound that is especially unpleasant to the ears. Even M. Bourassa's compatriots (as he calls them) do not seem to be particularly hostile to the present position of Canada within the Empire. The French-Canadian Nationalist leader has been preaching the virtues of complete independence for many years, and his followers appear to be decreasing rather than increasing in numbers. Certainly none of the real leaders of public opinion in the Province of Quebec pay any attention to the views of Mr. Bourassa.

Neither the aspirations of Mr. Hertzog nor the hopes of Mr. Bourassa are of any special interest to Canadians. One of the exponents of public opinion is remote from Canada and the other is a spent political force in Canada. But we can understand their position. The Premier of South Africa is an individual of alien blood; the French-Canadian Liberal leader has never been able to reconcile himself to British institutions in Canada, although French-Canadians have been accorded special privileges under such institutions. But there is something we cannot understand. That is why there should be a school of public opinion in some of the provinces outside of Quebec which appears to be in complete sympathy with the views of both Mr. Hertzog and Mr. Bourassa.

There are such schools of political thought in Canada, and they have their organs of public opinion. There is at least one leading newspaper in the Province of Ontario which is constantly harping on the theme of the "autonomy" of Canada and hinting at some deep conspiracy to limit the bounds of the liberties of Canadians. There is a newspaper in the Province of Manitoba afflicted with a similar obsession. There is a newspaper in British Columbia which is merely an echo of the views of those two peculiar newspapers.

If any other newspaper says anything in favor of more intimate trade relations with Great Britain, they are accused of being "Little Canadians" and political reactionaries, or of suggesting something hostile to the business doctrine of the "Manchester School," whose motto is to buy in the cheapest market and to sell in the dearest. Under present conditions Canadians are heavy exporters to and light importers from Great Britain and light exporters to and heavy importers from the United States. Our exports to Great Britain are chiefly foodstuffs, and our imports therefrom of no particular consequence. Our exports to the United States are chiefly raw materials and our imports therefrom manufactured articles. If we say Canada for Canadians and everything in Canada for Canadians, we are charged with conspiring to enrich the few at the expense of the masses.

At the Lake of the Hanging Glaciers

In Camp With the Alpine Club of Canada—Climbs and Expeditions in a Great Mountain Playground

By ARTHUR O. WHEELER

Wild excitement prevailed at the Banff Club House. Word had come to send members forward to the camp. The president and secretary were already on the ground supervising the arrangements. The motor buses arrived and were packed with eager passengers, with camp duff, baggage, axes, ropes and rucksacks, and with all the other odds and ends of climbing paraphernalia. Over the world-famous Banff-Windermere Road through the picturesque villages of Atholmer and Wilmer, and on up Horseshoe Creek by a narrow winding road where there is only room for one car at a time, a path had to be cut around it. The road gets rougher. The route is filled with water from a recent landslide. Rocks are numerous and corduroy spans the mountain rivulets. Another detour car appears. What of it? We arrive at the base camp, eighteen miles from Wilmer, and are fed and assigned quarters for the night. We are in the best of spirits, swap opinions as to expeditions and prepare for an early start on the morrow to hike to main camp, seventeen miles distant, by a well-worn mountain trail which has recently been cut out and put in order for us by the British Columbia Government.

It leads up the well-timbered valley of Horseshoe Creek beside a rushing, muddy torrent fed by glaciers at the head and by tributary waterfalls leaping into it. We pass a rocky, steep descent, a twin leap on the north side, attracts special attention. The trail leads through primeval forest, spruce, fir, cedar and the vivid foliage of the Devil's Club lines the way. Past a deep rock canyon where the torrent foams and leaps from higher cliffs, we ascend a steep, rocky slope, and a half mile on a camp comes into view, where a substantial lunch is quickly served. Then on again, all day long, higher, until unexpectedly the white tents of the canvas city and the many-colored flags floating gaily in the breeze indicate that we have arrived at our goal.

THE CAMP

The main camp is pitched on a flat, thickly timbered with small spruce and balsam, and spaces for the tents have been carved out. Some seventy or eighty tents are here pitched, the ladies' quarters, the men's quarters, the married quarters. Paths lead from one to another, and the picturesque, brightly-colored canvas tents, which give it a kaleidoscopic appearance that, added to the hum of merry voices, creates an atmosphere of excitement all its own. The centre of activity is under the big fly where rustic tables have been built to seat 120 members for meals when all are collected at the camp after the day's work. Here are the notice boards to tell what is doing in the way of climbs and expeditions and for life posing and pictures concerning the camps, the mail rack and the afternoon tea service for members of returned parties on climbs and expeditions. If the place of general assembly, the cooks' quarters are close by and they may be seen busily at work assisted by the scouts who wait on the tables and generally look after the camp arrangements under the able superintendence of Charlie Richardson, of Calgary, well known in club circles for his part in this phase of the work. Camp construction was done, and well done, by Charlie and his gang, some sixteen young students to whom the call of the Great Hills appeals so strongly that they are willing to work like niggers in order to get the tang of the camp and a climb or two when the work slackens up. It has been a herculean task, the labor of which is but faintly realized by the many who come in and take possession of tents all ready to be occupied, and who daily, as the tocsin sounds, sit at the long tables for their meals with little thought of the brains and brawn put into the machinery which rolls along so smoothly day and night for their comfort and enjoyment.

CLIMBS AND EXPEDITIONS

Southward, directly across the creek, is the timbered skyline ridge leading to the amphitheatre of the Lake of the Hanging Glaciers. The trail continues westward a mile or more to the ice tongue of the Starbird Glacier. The great camp fire circle and some of the tents are on a point between the main stream and a tributary, and are connected by log bridges, more or less precarious. The lake is two miles distant, and is reached by a trail, well beaten by the tramping of many Alpine boots, rising to timberline, beyond which lie open Alpine meadows, carpeted with heather and brilliant flowers and dotted with larch groves. The head of the valley is enclosed by the snowy heights of the Dome, 10,060 feet above sea level, and of Mount Monier, 9,610 feet, while just around the corner to the northwest is Mount Thompson (David Thompson), 10,300 feet in altitude. Spectacular waterfalls break from the heights on both sides of the camp and the sound of rushing water is always in your ears.

Activities actually began on July 19. The Dome and Mount Thompson were then climbed by parties in charge of the well-known Swiss guides Edward Peus and his brother Walter Peus, loaned to the club by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company for the period of the camp. They were followed by H. F. Thomson and C. G. Wates, old-time members and skilled climbers. These are graduating climbs, where aspirants to active membership pass initiation, a feat of much anxiety.

On July 20 the Dome and Mount Monier were climbed by parties in charge of the same guides, assisted by A. A. McCoubrey and H. F. Thomson. On July 21 Mount Thompson was climbed by the guide Walter Peus. This was a climb for the securing of the badge—the highest honor of the club. The Dome also was climbed by the same guides, assisted by H. F. Thomson, two minor peaks directly north of the Dome were climbed, the higher under the leadership of Edward Peus assisted by C. G. Wates. To this unnamed peak, it was voted at the named peak, it was voted at the campfire, that the name of Mount Dorothy be given in honor of the wife of Colonel F. C. Bell, C.M.G., the club's president, and that representation to such effect be made to the Geographic Board of Canada.

Meanwhile, numerous expeditions are making the Lake of the Hanging Glaciers and to the Starbird Glacier, at the head of the valley. All agree as to the spectacular wonders of the lake and revel in the scenic splendors of its ice-bound shores and in the quaint feature of the icebergs, some as big as houses, which break off from the great ice wall at its upper end and go floating over its blue waters. So also the mighty ice masses of the Starbird Glacier bring coolness and comfort to those coming from heated, dust-grimed cities to seek rest and revitalization in these "primeval surroundings."

So far the climbs have been chiefly for the benefit of members graduating, and to date, July 21, seventeen have graduated—that is, arrived during the climb of a mountain 2,500 feet above the timberline of the region, a mountain that holds a living glacier, a glacier that moves in a slow, steady flow down its bed. Now that this is nearly over, more serious work will begin. A camp will be placed at the head of Farnham Creek, the South Fork of Horseshoe Creek, to accommodate sixteen members, and from it higher and more difficult peaks will be climbed.

THE GREAT CAMPFIRE
Tonight, July 21, the campfire circle was presided over by the old director and founder of the club, Colonel W. W. Foster, D.S.O., had arrived during the afternoon and gave a most interesting talk, taking as his text the legends of the British Columbia Indians. Dr. Munro, of Philadelphia, had also arrived with a party. He gave a most instructive talk about his climbs at the head of the Starbird Glacier and in the Purcell Range. He brought with him the well-known Austrian guide, Conrad Kain, who for many years has worked for the Alpine Club. Conrad is a born raconteur, and delighted the audience with the story of how he came to be known as the "Milkmaid Guide," in a moment of affluence he had posed as a "gentleman" and hired a guide to take up a mountain in the French Alps. The story lost nothing by its repetition.

REPRESENTATION AT CAMP

The gathering at the camp is truly representative. The Alpine Club (England) is represented by Mr. J. C. Parker, a member of the Canadian members. Mr. Parker also represents the Scotch Mountaineering Club, of which he is a past president. The Club Alpin Français is represented by A. O. Wheeler, honorary member, and by G. A. Gamby, The American Alpine Club and Appalachian Clubs, who climb American and Canadian members; the Japanese Alpine Club, by Mr. Shozo Kitada; the German-Austrian Club, by Dr. E. Osterling; the Fresh Air Club of New York, by Mr. H. W. Vernon, and the Mountaineers of Seattle, by Mr. Benjamin C. Moors, and are here to spy out the land. To date, 122 members and guests have registered.

Among the notables present is Mr. George M. Weed, of the American and Appalachian Clubs, who climbed and explored in the early days in the Selkirk and Main Ranges of the Canadian Rockies, and who, in 1902, made the first ascent of Mount Forbes with Dr. Norman Collie, Sir James Outram and others.

Of countries represented may be mentioned Canada, the United States, England, Scotland, New Zealand, Australia, Japan, Switzerland, Germany and Austria. To show how cosmopolitan a gathering it is, it may be mentioned that on one rope on one climb were a Canadian, an Englishman, a New Zealander, an American and a Japanese, and by a Swiss guide. Things are humming. Satisfaction and joy, unmitigated by such trifles as sunburn, tired feet and a few flies, beam from every countenance, and in our next we shall have big things to tell of.

OUR TEACHERS
Our teachers are not always those
With much of learning's store,
Whose words, unfailingly disclose
The vastness of their lore.

For many times unlettered lips
Can priceless truths impart,
And peace from humble sources
Alips

The lowly can most surely lend
The patience I would gain,
And from their crowded ranks ascend
Rare powers to conquer pain.

Sometimes the plodder's quiet ways
Own dignity and grace,
Sometimes the virtues all men
praise

Dwell in a modest place.
Not only to the lofty few
Let words like rare gems fall;
The lowliest one earth ever knew
Was greatest of them all.

Father—Why are you always behind with your studies, Johnny?
Johnny—So that I can pursue

SAY TRANSLATION REAL TASK

Japanese is such a difficult language, and so different in idiom from those of other countries that it is just as hard to translate the ideas of foreign authors as it is for those authors to conceive them originally, according to magazine publishers and book sellers in Japan. This was declared at a recent meeting in Tokyo which was called by the Government with reference to the copyright convention to be held in Rome next spring. The Japanese publishers went on record as objecting to the proposed extension of the term of copyright from thirty to fifty years, and to abolishment of the reservation which allows signatories to translate freely ten years after publication of the original.

WORLD AMITY ROTARY OBJECT

PAST GOVERNOR MANNY TELLS OF INTERNATIONAL PARLEY AT MINNEAPOLIS

Shriners' Leader Reviews Work for Crippled Children—Mr. J. Wood Outlines Trip in East

"We must think internationally, and draw this old world together in a bond of friendship that will not be broken again," said Mr. H. H. Manny, past governor of the Pacific Northwest Rotary District, in addressing the Victoria Rotary Club yesterday at its luncheon session in the Empress Hotel ballroom. Mr. Manny said the sixth object of Rotary, the promotion of international good-will and understanding, had become the main interest of Rotary Clubs.

Mr. Manny briefly reviewed the recent International Rotary convention, which was held at Minneapolis, and at which 12,000 persons were registered. Forty-one of the forty-four countries in the world were represented at the gathering. He told of the inspiring addresses which were delivered at the parley, and pictured the influence of an educated public opinion in telling the governments of the world that there shall be no more war.

Mr. Manny also outlined the work of the Shriners' organization, which has built fifteen hospitals for crippled children. The 800 beds provided for free treatment for the crippled kiddies were occupied, and there were 1,800 approved cases now on the waiting list. There were 400,000 known cases in North America, with an annual increase of 18,000. "We take crippled kiddies up to fourteen years of age, without regard to race, color or religion. The Shriners cannot do it all, however, and we appreciate the wonderful assistance which Rotarians are giving in boys' work," Mr. Jones stated.

Rotarian John Wood told of a recent trip he had made in the East, during which he visited Toronto, Montreal, New York City and Scranton, Pa., and described impressions gained as a delegate to the International Correspondence Schools at Scranton. Mr. Wood praised the efficiency and service of the Canadian Pacific Railway to Montreal, declaring that it was superior to that of the five lines required for the return journey. He said he found a shortage of skilled building trade workers in all the large cities in the Dominion, but pointed out that employment conditions in the United States were not as good as they were in Canadian cities. "If the native sons and daughters of Canada would only go to work and appreciate what they've got—they have all they need right here in Canada," he concluded, amid applause.

PICNIC WEDNESDAY

Padre Bruce invited all the Rotarians and their families to attend the club picnic which will be held at his home, Mount Newton Crossroad, next Wednesday. Rotarian Robert R. Webb stated arrangements were completed for the Rotary trip to Port Angeles on August 15.

A hearty welcome was extended to Mr. Harry Miller, manager of the Alberta territory for the Canadian General Electric, a former member of the local Rotary Club, who was a luncheon guest.

President Herbert Anson presented to Rotarian John Kissinger a birthday cake, with eleven lighted candles, in recognition of a recent addition to his family.

ALL PROVINCES PLACED ON PARITY

Dual Succession Duties Will Be Abolished, It Is Hoped, Throughout Canada

The Government of the province has taken by order-in-council the power to forego the collection of succession duties other than on property owned within the Province of British Columbia, a rule that will apply to all provinces of the Dominion, including Quebec.

A few days ago, when the original order-in-council covering this aspect of the succession laws was passed by the Government, the Province of Quebec was excluded from the beneficial operations of the rule. Now it has been decided to bring Quebec within the same scope as other provinces of the Dominion. It is the hope of the Government that the other provinces outside of British Columbia will reciprocate in this matter and make the rule apply similarly to the British Columbia regulations.

Premier MacLean stated yesterday that this order-in-council is implementing legislation passed at the last session of the Legislature. The power was given in the new act to bring into effect such a change as that which has been made. The order-in-council simply made the legislation of last session effective.

The Premier says that whereas Ontario is the only province so far that has expressed its willingness to reciprocate in the matter, it is his hope that the others may follow suit and, accordingly, it has been deemed wise to make the rule applicable to all other provinces, including Quebec, believing that this is the right practice.

BOYS ADMIT AUTO THEFT

VANCOUVER, Aug. 2.—Sentence was deferred by Mr. Justice Grant in county court today on Percy Firth and William Adie, both of Drumheller, Alta., who pleaded guilty to stealing an automobile. They asked for suspended sentence, but this the judge would not grant. He agreed to remand the boys for a week on the understanding that the parents would appear on behalf of their sons.

BUDGET APPROVED

LISBON, Aug. 2.—The Government council today approved the 1928-29 budget. The estimated revenues are $86,372,000, and the expenses are $86,301,500.

Obituary

CAMPBELL—Private funeral service was held at the Thomson Funeral Home, 1625 Quadra Street, yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock for Mrs. Euphemia Campbell, who passed away at the family residence, 409 Simcoe Street, on Tuesday afternoon. Rev. H. P. S. Luttrell, pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, conducted a very impressive service, during which the hymns sung were "Rock of Ages," and "Safe in the Arms of Jesus." The many beautiful floral tributes covered the casket. Messrs. John Naysmith, D. McKerracher, W. A. Plenderith and M. Griffiths acted as pallbearers. The remains were laid to rest in the Royal Oak Burial Park.

WELLS—There passed away at the Royal Jubilee Hospital, Wednesday evening, Mrs. Laura Annie Wells, aged forty years, a native of Quebec and a resident of this city for three months, formerly of Moose Jaw. She is survived by her husband, Mr. L. Wells, of this city, and two daughters at home, one brother in Saskatchewan, also two sisters, one in Saskatchewan and one in Fort William. The remains resting at the Thomson Funeral Home, 1625 Quadra Street, pending funeral arrangements which will be announced later.

JENNINGS—Funeral service will be held at the Thomson Funeral Home, 1625 Quadra Street, this afternoon at 4 o'clock for Mr. George Jennings, who passed away at the Royal Jubilee Hospital Tuesday evening. Rev. Dr. Clem Davies, pastor of the City Temple, will conduct the service, after which the remains will be forwarded on the midnight boat to Vancouver, en route to Dr. Bennett, where interment will be made.

SMITH—On July 31 there passed away at the George Smith, aged sixty-five years. The remains are resting at Hayward's B.C. Funeral Chapel, from where the funeral service will take place this afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment will be made in Ross Bay cemetery.

RAY—The funeral of Mr. Ralph Clifford Ray, who passed away in this city on Tuesday, was held yesterday afternoon at the Metropolitan United Church. There was a large attendance of sympathizing friends, and a special car was necessary to convey the beautiful floral designs, bearing testimony to the high esteem in which the late Mr. Ray was held by his many friends. Rev. Dr. Sipprell conducted an impressive service, during which the hymns "Lead, Kindly Light" and "O Love That Will Not Let Me Go" were sung. Mr. P. Edmonds rendered as a solo, "O Trust in the Lord." The following gentlemen acted as pallbearers: Messrs. Grant, Johnson, Percy C. Richards, Ronald Whittington, Percy Cracknell, E. Castner and H. Lewis. Interment was made in the family plot in Ross Bay Cemetery. S. J. Curry & Son, funeral directors, had charge of the funeral arrangements. Among the numerous senders of floral offerings were the staff of A. P. Blade & Company, Victoria Postoffice staff, staff of G. H. Snow & Company, Limited (Vancouver and Victoria), and the staff of the Victoria Postoffice, Western Fruit & Produce Company (Vancouver), and Brown & Company, Limited (Vancouver).

MORE MOTORISTS ARE PROSECUTED

Eight Drivers Contribute to Court Treasury—R. Sheppard Fined on Common Danger Count

Alfred Gilson, Matthew McConnell, Kenneth Smith, William Colbert, George Fox, Ernest Ard, Arthur Harris, and Fred Savory were each fined $5 in the city police court yesterday by Magistrate George Jay for failing to obey the stop signs at the entrance to arterial highways in the city.

Reginald Sheppard was convicted on a charge of driving his automobile to the common danger on Fort Street on July 28, and was fined $5. The defendant pleaded not guilty. In giving evidence for the prosecution, Motorcycle Constable Peris Atkinson testified that Sheppard drove his car through the "Danger" sign on Fort Street at a rate of thirty miles per hour.

Fines of $5 each were imposed on Gordon Thomas, who operated his automobile without the necessary muffler, and on Ross Elves, who failed to produce a driver's licence upon the demand of a police officer.

Pleading guilty to a charge of failing to make a return to the Federal Government of income for 1923, B. R. Lennon was fined $25 and $2.50 costs. Mr. William T. Strath appeared for the prosecution.

The case of Leong Chong, a Chinese, who is charged with failing to secure the necessary trade licence, was further remanded until next Monday at the request of his counsel, Mr. Stuart Henderson.

OTTAWA ANXIOUS TO AID INDUSTRY

Hon. Charles Stewart Explains Policy of His Department at Vancouver Luncheon

VANCOUVER, Aug. 2.—Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior, guest of the council of the Board of Trade at luncheon at noon, spoke at length on the work and policy of the Federal Interior Department as regards industrial surveys and general assistance to Canadian industrial development.

The natural resources intelligence service, the minister explained, has been continuously identified in a large way with furthering the development of public lands, water power, forest, mineral and other industrial resources. Its specific duties are to act as a central bureau of information on the different works of Canadian industries and tourist development.

Mr. Stewart said his department had no desire to impose its views with respect to the making of industrial surveys, but it had first-hand experience in the field and was prepared to extend its support and aid, in an advisory and co-operative way, to organizations.

Watch Victor!

More than two years ago Victor electrified the world. A new and entirely unexpected revelation in the sound reproducing art, the new Orthophonic Victrola was projected into the life of the people. To-day the name of this new invention is a household word wherever music is played at home.

A short time previous to that, a tremendous stride forward was made with the introduction of the new improved Victor V. E. Process Record, now known as the Victor V. E. Orthophonic Record. Together these inventions have put home music on a new plane, as everybody knows.

Victor has ALWAYS given the world the very best, the very latest, in the art of sound reproduction.

Now once again Victor is going to announce something new, something BETTER, something different, something that will be a revelation in ANOTHER FIELD of sound reproduction, worthy to take its place beside the new Orthophonic Victrola in any home.

MENTAL POWER IS INFINITE

FAITH AWAKENS DORMANT DIVINE SPARK IN SUB-CONSCIOUS MIND

Professor J. A. Armand Gives Second Lecture on Art of Living at Crowded Meeting

"The greatest discovery of psychology; the greatest secret uncovered by mental scientists, is the awakening of that dormant power, that spark of the divine, the soul," Professor J. A. Armand, noted mental scientist of Paris and London, stated at the conclusion of his second address in the Victoria Club Hall, Campbell Building, last night on the "Art of Living."

"The discovery is the one word, faith; not necessarily religious faith. Faith will awaken the soul while you sleep. The subconscious mind will send it out into the universe of power. It will bring back whatever you desire. Where there is doubt, however, the divine spark cannot be aroused," he declared.

Over 400 people attended last night's lecture. As a result of the crowded condition in the hall, a large audience had to be sought in the next Monday night's lecture. During the week classes of instruction will be held.

By power of mind over matter pain could be removed and nervous ailments cured, the speaker said.

"It does not cure every complaint, but it does in the case of nerve troubles. Mental science, however, should always be used no matter what treatment is being applied for the sickness one suffers from."

REMOVES PAIN

"Be very careful of your thoughts. As we think so we become. When ill, never give up hope. Mental science has nothing to do with Christian Science, because it recognizes pain. Pain can be removed by the proper application of mental science."

Dealing with the marvels of the subconscious mind, Professor Armand emphasized the importance of the gospel of cheerfulness.

"You will live longer, live happier and make other people happy by constantly keeping cheerful thoughts in your mind. The two greatest enemies of mankind are doubt and fear. The proper mental attitude is not 'I hope this is going to happen,' but 'I know, I am convinced.' Have confident anticipation and apply thought repetition. Not only repeat your thought, but apply spoken affirmation. It has a tremendous effect. The best time to use auto-suggestion is when you sleep."

Professor Armand illustrated his point with the experience that is common to many people—that of going to bed, at night with the thought on one's mind that one has to get up at a certain hour in the morning to catch a train or boat.

Eagles of Port Angeles Coming Here on Sunday

THE Eagles Lodge of Port Angeles, Wash., will hold an excursion to Victoria on Sunday next. The party, which will consist of between 500 and 600 people, will arrive in Victoria on the S.S. Sol Duc at 9 o'clock Sunday morning. The excursionists will spend all day here, leaving at 8 p.m. on the return trip to the American city. They will be greeted on their arrival here by officials and members of the Victoria Eagles' Lodge.

One invariably awakes at the time one has thought.

"This has been done for centuries, but people never thought of applying the power in the subconscious mind to matters of health. The power of the subconscious mind is in its remarkable power of memory and the fact that it cannot reason. The subconscious mind does not reason. It is only the conscious mind that does that. You can keep yourself young, healthy and strong by the use of the proper mental attitude."

DIRECT SUGGESTION

"Train your children into the right channels of thought by direct suggestion," Professor Armand stated. "If your child is dishonest or has acquired bad habits, use direct suggestion before he retires at night. The subconscious mind will work all night. You will see a change within a week," he declared.

The speaker said that colors had a great effect on the mind. Colors gave off vibration. Bright red rooms would make a person nervous, quarrelsome and "high-strung." Green rooms he advocated for restful dispositions. It would make them restful. Musicians should seek sky blue, mauve and yellow to stimulate the spiritual quality so necessary in music.

"Is it possible to project our thoughts? There should be no doubt about it," he said. The highest and most advanced psychologist in Canada was the Archbishop of the Vatican, of Prince Rupert, whose success in the realm of mental telepathy was fully reported in all newspapers not only on this continent, but in Europe. You have all read of his experiments with thought transmission with his daughter and of the apparatus he invented for resisting thought vibrations during thought transmission.

Professor Armand gave an instance of a Victorian man, of twenty-three years of age, who was in Ottawa. While attending a church service he had experienced the feeling of suffocation and had left the church appearing very ill. At identically the same time that this happened to him his brother in Victoria had almost been drowned while out fishing. This was only one of the many illustrations the professor gave of thought transmission.

The natives in Natal knew of the relief of Kimberley during the Boer War at the same time Kimberley was relieved. British officers did not believe their stories, but several days afterwards it was confirmed by telegraph, after communication had been restored. This was another instance of mental telepathy, which the speaker said had been practised by the natives of Africa and India for many years.

TRANSMISSION NECESSITIES.

"What is necessary for thought transmission? The person receiving must be passive, receptive, negative. The sender must be positive, affirmative. Whenever possible the time of thought transmission should be prearranged." Thought transmissions were made possible by the same element that made radio, television and wireless possible, namely ether.

"Either, not air, mind you, permeates the entire universe. We know it is elastic though it is elastic, it is also plastic; it retains impressions. That is what explains second sight, or clairvoyance."

Professor Armand explained that happenings were registered by vibration in the ether. He gave several instances which accounted for what might account for ghost stories surrounding many of the old European castles. Only persons who were very sensitive to these vibrations were able to see the actual picture, although many might feel depressed and wonder what the matter was with the place.

The speaker said that it was much easier to transmit thought pictures, rather than words.

Councillor C. McGahey recently found a stray homing pigeon, evidently from France, lying on the rug in his bedroom in London-derry, Ireland. The bird apparently having flown down through the window and dropped dead from exhaustion.

Marketing Act Case Does Not Go Far Enough to Challenge Grand Principles of Enactment

The appeal under the Marketing Act as it affects the selling of produce in the Fraser Valley having been thrown out of court by Mr. Justice Murphy on other points than those affecting the question of the jurisdiction of the Legislature to enact such laws, it leaves the situation unchanged as to settling the right of the Province to enact this law.

The intention of the Government had been to carry the case to the Privy Council if necessary to test the validity of the enactment. Now the matter will remain where it was.

The case, in the first instance, was taken by some Chinese dealers in Vancouver, and it appeared as if the matter was going to be tested out on the question of jurisdiction on the part of the Province to enact such legislation. The bringing up of other preliminary objections as to the right of the magistrate to hear the case, however, diverted the attention away from the main issue.

SOUTH SAANICH

The South Saanich Women's Institute held a very jolly picnic on Saturday, when the members and their families and friends spent a happy afternoon and evening at Island View Beach. Games and sports occupied the greater part of the afternoon, the results of the latter being as follows:

Girls and boys under six—1, Dale Sutherland; 2, Mary Cruise. Girls under nine—1, Eileen Young; 2, Pat Bull; 3, Norren Priker. Boys under nine—1, Richard Warner; 2, Walter Priker; 3, Harry Syvan.

Boys twelve and under—1, Jack Bull; 2, Karl Young; 3, Harry Hanson; 2, Alice Syvan. Young ladies' race—1, Hilda Syvan; 2, Margaret Mitchell. Young men's race—1, Alfred Syvan; 2, Fred Sutton. Married ladies' race—1, Mrs. T. Mitchell; 2, Mrs. W. Bale. Married men's race—1, Willard and Tom Mitchell (tie); 3, W. D. Mitchell.

W. D. Mitchell acted as starter and H. Rowntree and W. Hume held the tape.

An energetic committee of ladies prepared the events and served the ice cream. A delicious picnic tea was enjoyed at the long tables, after which a large bonfire was built on the beach.

The South Saanich Junior Institute Club entertained the members of the South Saanich Women's Institute and their mothers at Mount Douglas Park on Wednesday afternoon. The party met at the Temperance Hall at 2 o'clock and made the trip from there in cars. A pleasant time was spent in the delightful grounds and on the beach, and during the afternoon a delicious tea was served on the lawn.

WEST SAANICH

The annual picnic of the West Saanich Women's Institute was held at Sandy Beach on Wednesday. Although the turnout was small, a very enjoyable time was had by all present.

After luncheon games and water sports were enjoyed until dusk when a bounteous supper was served around a blazing campfire.

FAVORITE SINGER HEARD IN RECITAL

Mrs. Eva Baird Gives Audience Great Pleasure in Recital at Comtesse de Suzanne's

Comte and Comtesse Jean de Suzanne entertained yesterday afternoon at a delightfully arranged private recital in honor of Mrs. Eva Baird, the Canadian contralto, who has just returned to the city after several successful seasons devoted to recital work and study in Paris. Preceding the concert tea was served on the flower-strewn terrace, with its fine sweep of sunny sea and distant islands. Mrs. Charles Wilson, assisting the hostess, Mrs. Baird began her programme about five o'clock, and in the course of her hour-long recital displayed some of the new beauties of her magnificent voice, which during her absence has acquired an even richer and more brilliant quality and greatly enhanced range and expressiveness. Constant recital and concert work has given her wonderful poise, and the greatest finesse is apparent in the details of intonation, phrasing and diction.

A very satisfying part of her singing is its facility; with the greatest ease she modulates her tone to suit the sentiment of the music, developing a consistent atmosphere which strengthens the emotional appeal of the song. The audience was intensely demonstrative, and demanded the repetition of many of the numbers, the singer gracefully acquiescing. Mrs. Gertrude Huntley Green at the piano gave a characteristically brilliant display of her gifts as accompanist, sharing in no small measure in the applause, and also receiving some of the beautiful tributes presented to the singer.

The programme included the following beautiful numbers: Respighi's "Nebbia," the deep pathos of which was finely emphasized by the singer; the very charming "Ost Mon Ami," sung with light caressing tone and graceful meter; the tenderly-passionate "Je cache mon amour" (repeated by music guests); Strauss' exquisite "Serenade"; Duparc's "Chanson Triste"; and Paladilhe's "Psyche," the very difficult narrative-style "Le Bachelier de Salamanque," by Albert Roussel, the accompaniment of which was also notable; a de Falla group which included the characteristically Spanish-rhythmic "El amor moribundo" and "Vota" (which has a dazzlingly brilliant accompaniment), and the passionately wistful "Aurora."

The concluding group was English, three charmingly satisfying songs, Burleigh's "Deep River," sung quietly and with complete lack of affectation in sentiment. "The Blind Plover" (Coningsby Clarke), familiar as one of the songs which Mrs. Baird popularized here before she left for Europe; and La Farge's ecstatic "Song of the Open," which was interpreted with fine free spirit.

The audience crowded forward to shower congratulations on the singer.

TEACHERS PASS IN LIFE SAVING

Summer School Students Successful in Test Carried Out by Provincial Examiner

All the candidates of the Summer school class, who took the Royal Life Saving Society's tests held at the Crystal Garden on Wednesday by J. D. McNeill, the provincial examiner, were successful. Each member of the class, which numbered eight, was presented with the bronze medallics in certificate, while Miss Harvey won the award of merit, the more advanced diploma given by the society.

The marks obtained by the students were exceptionally high, the average being 84 per cent. Frank Hynlop took first place in the test with a total of 91. He was followed by Miss Margaret Palmer and Max Maynard with 89 points, Miss Smille with 87, Miss Blusson with 84, Miss Lapham with 82, Miss Bradford with 81, and Mr. Walters with 76.

In taking the Award of Merit Miss Harvey obtained one of the highest marks ever given in the province, making 91 per cent out of a possible 110.

The class was commended on its showing following the tests by J. D. McNeill, the examiner.

The course was for four weeks' duration and under the instruction of W. G. Brandreth, physical training instructor at the school.

HANDICRAFT WORK TO BE DISPLAYED

Women's Institutes Will Unite to Present Attractive Feature at Willows Fair

The Women's Institute Branch of the Department of Agriculture is sponsoring an exhibit of handicrafts into the Victoria Fair, in pursuance of the policy of the Provincial Board of Women's Institutes to encourage and assist handicrafts in every possible way.

In addition to the Institute's own particular handicraft of the "Chinook Rug," which is a hooked rug made in either wool or rags in special Indian designs, the exhibitors hope to include demonstrations in various arts such as readily undertaken both for profit and pleasure by rural women as well as town folk.

It is hoped to include demonstrations in crystallizing fruit, spinning, weaving, glove making, and pillow lace making, as well as an exhibition of completed work of all varieties.

Institutes from the surrounding districts are being invited to hold bees in hand quilting and also in carding, filling and quilting a wool comforter.

ANOTHER KIND

Brandon was almost broken-hearted about his heavy losses on the stock exchange, but he found there was plenty of sympathy for him at the club.

One member was particularly kind.

"Cheer up, old chap!" he cried. "You mustn't worry too much about a little bad luck. Come along to my office in the morning and I'll give you a few pointers."

Brandon, however, was not easily cheered.

"Very kind of you," he began. "But it isn't pointers I'm after, it's retrievers."

Here is a very attractive and new ensemble for you. I am most enthusiastic about it.

First of all, the coat is worthy of honorable mention. Of navy blue flannel, it has piped belt and revers and the new fitted epaulet shoulders.

Then the dress, of the color of the piping, is trimmed in the navy flannel. It is a new three-piece, cardigan mode.

Heather Day Will Be Observed

Upon further consideration, the members of the Lady Douglas Chapter, I.O.D.E., definitely decided, at the monthly meeting held yesterday, to commemorate Heather Day in the usual manner, with the sale of heather in the streets on August 25, Mrs. Burton consenting to act, as in former years, as convenor for the day. The place for headquarters will be announced later, and members of the chapter were asked to assist in preparing the heather for sale on Friday, August 24, at municipal headquarters. Mrs. Fraser, of Uchuel, having promised to supply the heather.

The meeting passed a vote of sympathy to Mr. Bowser in the loss of his wife and a standing silent tribute to the memory of the late Mrs. Bowser was passed, the regent, Mrs. R. B. McKicking, recalling the valuable help given by Mrs. Bowser in the earlier days of the chapter. Mrs. H. C. Corbett, a member of the Batoche Chapter, of Southern Saskatchewan, was cordially welcomed at the meeting. Consideration was given to the projected visit of the English school girls to Victoria on September 22, and the chapter will act in any way required by the Municipal Chapter, when their programme is finally decided upon.

Weddings

WILSON. Aug. 2.—A pretty wedding took place today at Somenos St. Mary's Church, Island Highway, when Barbara Constance Chaplin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Chaplin, Sherman Road, Somenos, became the bride of Mr. Morris Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Wilson, 3878 St. Charles Street, telephone 3687, for Heather Day, August 25.

Her attendants were Miss Mary B. F. Somerville, of Nanaimo, and the bride's sister, Miss Eunice Chaplin. Each wore similar frocks of green crepe de Chine with uneven hem lines and picture mohair hats to match. They carried bouquets of roses and pink carnations. Mr. S. Francis, of Victoria, acted as best man.

For the service, Mr. Willet, of Duncan, presided at the organ. Mrs. W. Dobson sweetly rendered "Be-cause."

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, "Seven Oaks," where the bride and groom received the congratulations from their many friends in the reception room which was decorated with gladioli, sweet peas and dahlias.

A buffet supper was served. There was a beautiful three-tiered wedding cake. Many useful and valuable gifts were displayed.

Amid a shower of confetti and over the guests who left for Victoria en route to the Sound cities, where they will spend their honeymoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson wore a frock of blue silk flat crepe, with a fringed skirt and hat en suite. On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson will make their home at "Ken" Hillbank.

DEFENDING CHAMPION BEATEN IN B.C. TENNIS

Roar of Philadelphia Becomes Louder When Yankees Drop Another

World Champions Lose 15-Inning Encounter to St. Louis, While Athletics Defeat Indians—Giants Advance to Second in National

AMERICAN LEAGUE
ST. LOUIS, Aug. 2.—The roar of the Athletics became louder in the ears of the Yankees this evening as the Browns nosed out the champions, 4-3, in fifteen innings here after the earlier Mackenro had taken the Indians into camp at Cleveland, 6-0, earlier in the day for their tenth straight victory. The St. Louis game was broken up by Wally Stewart, who won his own decision by combining a single from Penneck with the bases filled and none out in the fifth.

WILLIAMS WILL RUN IN RELAY

Victor in 100 and 200-Metre Races at Olympics Will Take Part in Race Tomorrow

DOES NOT TRAIN AGAINST WATCH

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 2.—Percy Williams, the new world's sprinting champion, celebrated his double victory, the first since 1912, by getting a round night's sleep in preparation for further efforts on the paths of the Olympic Stadium.

"He is sleeping like a baby," P. J. Mulqueen, chief of the Canadian team, told the reporters who besieged the hero of the ninth Olympiad, last night. "Don't disturb him, he must run in the relays next Saturday."

That is all Canada asks of her Olympic athlete.

Williams came straight from the stadium after winning the 200-metre event, had a light lunch of tomato salad, cucumbers and mineral water, and then retired.

"I haven't taken my sweater off since last Thursday," he explained. "The officials of the Canadian team had been willing to let Williams scratch his entry in the 200 metres after winning the short sprint, but he insisted on running. Last night they offered to give him a well-earned rest by replacing him on the relay team, but he refused."

"My work is not finished yet," he said. "I'll see it through. Keep me on the relay team."

Williams does not keep any strict training regime. "I can eat and drink what I like," he said. "The Vancouver sprinter is one of the foremost examples of proof, according to many of the Olympic officials here, the American and French methods of training 'against the watch' are all wrong."

NO TIME RACES
Never in two years of his racing career has Williams been sent out to run against time by his trainer. He always races against proper opponents, with handicaps proportionate to their relative speed. Williams never goes out to break eleven seconds in the 100 metres or twenty-two in the 200, but instead, in a training, a handicap is placed several yards ahead and he is told to go out and beat him.

This, the experts say, explains the great burst of speed the Canadian showed a few metres from the tape in both the 100 and 200-metre race, when, after lying in second or third place for the entire distance, he simply left his opponents standing still like a thoroughbred streaking out from a bunch of stragglers.

When it is explained that the so-called selling plates are the pockets of the champions of the forty nations competing in the Olympics, Williams' friends say it is no reflection on the competitors, but that a star merely outclasses them when it comes to the finish.

Canadian officials denied today reports that Williams was an "added starter" on the Canadian team. He is a full-fledged member of the team, they said, and was brought to Europe at the expense of Canada.

SALMONBELLES TO MEET U.S. IN LACROSSE OPENER
AMSTERDAM, Aug. 2.—The "draw" for the Olympic lacrosse competition was definitely decided today by the tossing of a coin. The draw pits Canada, represented by the Salmonbellies of New Westminster, B.C., against the Johns Hopkins University, representing the United States on Sunday. Canada and the United States then tossed to see which would get the Monday lay-off and Canada won. Therefore, the United States will play England on Monday, and Canada and England will meet in the final match on Tuesday.

Eagles Defeat Sons 3-1 In Snappy Ball Tussle

Tribe Humble Champions in One of Best Games of the Season—Eagles' Infield Turns In Spectacular Display

Surprise packets are sometimes welcomed, and then again they are about as popular as a thunderstorm in the middle of a perfect summer's day. The latter is just how the surprise packet the Eagles handed the Sons of Canada ball nine at the Royal Athletic Park last night, in the form of a 3-1 defeat, was accepted. The most ardent ball fan might have had it all doped out that the Canadians would walk through the tribe with little or no difficulty, but when the tussle was over, and it certainly was a tussle, ball fans with the above assumption suffered a rude awakening, while the Sons of Canada suffered somewhat of a severe shock.

Well, at that, it was a great old ball game, and in fact, it was any game of the kind of the way, but the Eagles just stuck their talons into the fray and refused to withdraw them until they had gathered in a victory and humbled the champions.

SONS' LONE COUNTER
The Sons of Canada sent over one runner, and this was their only run, in the first inning on a two-bagger by McLaren, a single by Holman and a sacrifice hit by Colin Campbell, which scored McLaren.

The Eagles came back in the last half of the third and sent over two runs. Saville singled, went to second on a sacrifice by George Gandy, and came home on Latham's long hit to the outer grounds.

The Eagles came back in the last half of the third and sent over two runs. Saville singled, went to second on a sacrifice by George Gandy, and came home on Latham's long hit to the outer grounds.

The tribe turned in their best performance of the season behind the steady twirling of the veteran moundman Roy Baker. The infield, with the exception of Latham, who made one boner, gave Baker airtight support and also gave the customers one of the snappiest exhibitions of infield play seen here for many a day.

POTTS GOES GOOD
Alex Potts, veteran first-sacker, had a great night on the initial cushion handling sixteen put-outs without a miscue. Latham was given a great hand in the eighth when he made a double play unassisted. After spearing D'Arcy's hot Texas leaguer with one hand, he beat C. Campbell to the second sack for the double.

Bert Saville, playing short for the Eagles, turned in a good game, handling five hot drives without an error. Mex, who was holding down the hot corner for the tribe, certainly held a hot one when he grabbed off Bill Holman's drive about two feet from the ground in the third frame.

Roy Baker, who labored on the rubber for the tribe, held the Canadians to six scattered hits. He bressed the tribe.

Bill Holman, on the mound for the Sons, was nicked for seven hits and struck out six.

DETROIT, Aug. 2.—Jimmy McLarnin, Vancouver, B.C., the baby-faced boy with a heavy-weight wallop, knocked out Stanislaus Loyza, of Chile, in the fourth round of their scheduled ten-round battle here tonight.

McLarnin, the conqueror of Sid Terris and Phil McGraw, disposed of the sturdy South American with a left hook to the head, following that with a short right that caught Loyza flush on the chin.

His body draped over the lower rope of the ring for a second, then he fell back and attempted to regain his feet, but was still on his knees vainly trying to shake the cobwebs out of his dizzy brain when he was counted out.

The match was fought before a countless, sweltering crowd of 14,000, with gate receipts around $28,000. The receipts exceeded the match in which Sammy Mandell won the lightweight title from Rocky Kansas in Chicago two years ago.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 2.—Canada has gained greater wrestling successes in the present Olympic games than ever before, being awarded five points and placing fifth in the international standings.

The final placings gave D. P. Stockton, Montreal, a second in the 174-pound class, Stockton having defeated the English competitor, Morris Letchford, Montreal, took third place in the 158-pound class, defeating the English and French champions.

Only the strangeness of the European rules prevented further Canadian victories, three of the Canadians being beaten by rolling falls, which here are called "pinfalls."

After the finals, Dan Macdonald, of Toronto, and one of the United States wrestlers gave exhibitions of the American Continental style of wrestling, and impressed the Olympic committee favorably. It seemed apparent that uniform rules were necessary if the Canadians and United States men could be expected to improve their showing in future Olympiads.

Hope Leeming and Mary Campbell Make Semi-Finals in Ladies' Singles

MISS G. M. GROSS
One of the best tennis players who was beaten yesterday in the ladies' singles by Miss Hope Leeming, of this city.

Miss Hope Leeming came into the limelight in the British Columbia lawn tennis championships yesterday, when she defeated one of the seeded California stars in straight sets. Mrs. Gross is one of the steepest lady players here for the week, but she met one just as steady. The local girl showed very good generalship in keeping away from Mrs. Gross' punishing forehand and in judging which shots to follow to the net. She thoroughly earned her victory in a hard-fought match.

Just previously, Miss Campbell had played beautiful tennis to defeat Miss McNab (Vancouver).

MEN'S SINGLES

Tigers' Manager Says Murderous Attack of Yankees Will Be Resumed Shortly—Simmons' Return Helps Athletics

By GEORGE MORIARTY

North American Newspaper Alliance)

In later years there probably has never been a more conclusive illustration of what pitching form means to a ball club than the Yankees' recent reverses. Pitching is generally credited with being seventy-five per cent of a team's strength, but the Yankees' staff doesn't rate that high. Results show that their bats supersede their pitching arms.

The 24-6 setback the Yankees had at Cleveland Sunday has prompted more comment than any other game of the last few seasons. If the Yankees had amassed the twenty-four marks

there would have been little surprise.

Seventeen runs in the first two innings seem a record in themselves.

Five hits each for Hodapp and

Luke Sewell in a nine-inning game savor of a pitching line occurrence.

With Carl Lind's four hits added,

there is the odd feat of three batsmen accumulating fourteen hits in one game.

However, while individual averages prosper as a result of that slugfest, the Yankees as a team suffer only a one-game loss in their percentage column. There is no guarantee that the Yankees' bats have been stilled, except temporarily, and there is no doubt that their murderous attack will be resumed.

NOT BEING OVERWORKED

At this particular time, Miller

Huggins is the butt of much underserved censure for his policy of working his pitchers. From the outside it may look as if Huggins had been overworked lately, but I don't think so. The Yankee pilot is merely taking a desperate shortcut in an attempt to put his pitchers back on their feet.

Piperas has a high-powered pitching arm and he should be equal to a strenuous campaign. Huggins realizes that, and feels that a few victories will put him back in consistent form. On the other hand, it would be extremely dangerous to work Pennock out of turn. He needs complete rest between games. Waite

Hoyt is strong, clever and willing, and much depends upon his efforts in the next month.

Connie Mack's Athletics now have the opportunity with his pitching staff waiting for the Yankees' tremendous lead has been cut in half, and if the Philadelphia machine is permanently bound it cannot afford to let the champions increase their lead to a ten-game margin again.

Connie Mack now wields a strong advantage with his pitching staff.

The Yankees' bats have been stilled, except temporarily, and there is no doubt that their murderous attack will be resumed.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 2.—The standing in men's track and field competitions tonight saw Great Britain with two firsts, Canada with one and South Africa with one, giving the British Empire a total of six.

The United States won five victories, while Finland brought her total to two today by Larva's victory in the 1500 metres, and Japan broke into the first place column

when Oda won the hop-step-and-jump. According to the unofficial point score, the United States continued to lead with a total of 128½.

Canada was fifth with 28. In

RECOOKED ALCOHOL A DANGEROUS DRINK

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—Robert E. Lowrie, "recooker" for a bootleg syndicate, told in Federal Court recently secrets of the recocking school. He was a Government witness.

"I was paid $15 for every 100 gallons of recocked alcohol. This was a poisonous denatured alcohol. At first we put lime in to change the taste and cut the bitterness, but there were some kicks, and now we just recock it."

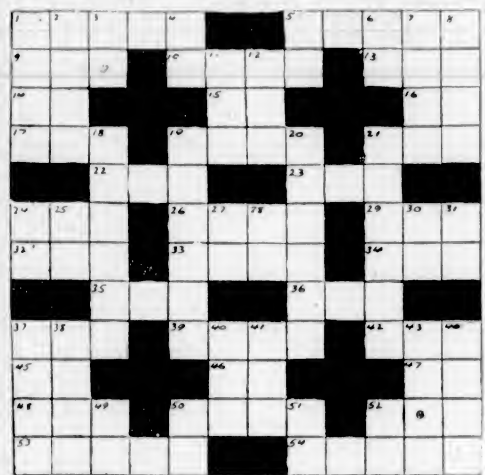

"The poison, a white substance, falls to the bottom of the still. It smells terrible, and we bury it. I don't know whether recocking gets all the poison out. It gets a good deal of it. The alcohol is used for gin and moonshine."

BLUEBERRY INDUSTRY

HALIFAX, N.S., Aug. 2.—Following the passage, at the last session of the Nova Scotia Legislature, of an act encouraging the cultivation of blueberries, an organized effort has been placed behind the blueberry industry in this province. Blueberry associations are being formed throughout Nova Scotia, and the Provincial Government is co-operating with these associations in selecting areas best suited for the growth of the berries. These areas will be burned, under Government supervision, and the cultivation will be favored with the best scientific knowledge and technical direction.

"LADY BETTY"

By JOHN L. CARTER

Author of "The Cinema Girl," "Peggie the Aeronaut," Etc.

CHAPTER IX (Continued)

"I think I will accompany you myself," said the inspector, after hearing Michela's account. It was the work of a very few minutes to get the necessary warrant drawn up. The inspector had just instructed a round dozen of plain-clothes men to take up inconspicuous positions in and about Leather Walk, and then he set out with Michela, in order to direct the raid himself.

CHAPTER X

On leaving The Daily Post offices, Madame Bovier made her way to the Cosmopolitan School of Languages in Holborn. She did not enter any of the class-rooms, however, but went along the corridor and out into the tiny yard at the back. This she crossed, unlocked a gate that was situated in the wall, and passed through.

She was now in another building, and after locking the door behind her, she went down a passage and opened a door that gave admission to a small room—in fact, it was the private office of The Anglo-French Cigarette Factory.

With her customary cunning, Madame Bovier bought outright the business of the Cosmopolitan School of Languages, with the good-will and fittings, solely in order that she should have a secret entrance into the league's headquarters. She had now been in possession nearly a week. Wisely she had retained two assistant professors, and business was carried on as usual.

The making of that door, between the place and the other, had been done with great care and thought. In the office of the Leather Lane premises, she had had a large cupboard built so as to hide the door in the wall. It was all very clever and quite worthy of her.

Velasco was sitting moodily at the desk, biting a pen. "Get up—fool!" she cried. "We have no time to spend in mooning about. Lord Alister will not be long before he is on our track. And we cannot expect to remain here forever without being discovered."

"What did he say?" queried Velasco. "Tell me all that passed. I frightened him by mentioning that you had your eyes on his daughter. Then I made him cut out the leaders against us, and warned him that any in the future would react upon him or her."

"And what did he say to that?" "What could he do but give in? He knew that I had the girl in my power, and no one has ever accused me of being unduly gentle when it came to protecting my own interests. So he gave way, and I have doubt he will behave himself, until he has secretly got his plans fully laid for overthrowing me."

"How long will that be?" "It may be never. He has me to reckon with. And personally, I think there is nothing more baffling than a running fight. But we must not forget to keep on the run, my friend. This girl is worth more to the league than anything else. So long as I have her in my grip, I can dictate to my friend Alister."

"There is no need to run away just yet," protested Velasco. "We have been here barely a week."

"I must get a girl away," Madame Bovier insisted. Count Velasco pricked up his ears at that.

"I had better start with her immediately," he said. Madame Bovier turned scornfully upon him.

"You will stay here, you fool. Do you think I would trust her to you? She would escape, as likely as not. No, call a taxi at once, and then she and I will slip away."

But she will never consent," objected Velasco. "She may wait until she is in the street, but she is certain to struggle and make a scene. Then you would lose her without a doubt."

"She will go as meekly as a lamb. I can assure you," replied the adventures. "I am not quite an idiot!" With that she hurried down the passage, and unlocked a door. With the room sat Lady Betty, pale and listless with hopelessness of the situation.

"You have to come with me to France," began Madame Bovier. Lady Betty drew herself up defiantly.

"You cannot make me do it," she said defiantly. "You know quite well that I can appeal to the first policeman we meet, or I should claim protection from the guard of the train, or the captain of the boat. Then why make such a ridiculous suggestion?"

Madame Bovier smiled, and looked Lady Betty with offensive familiarity under the chin. "You naughty little puss, I think you will come."

"I won't!" cried Lady Betty. "We shall see!" retorted Madame Bovier. "But I think I shall be able to get you to promise to go very quietly, my dear."

"Oh no, you won't!" cried Lady Betty spitefully. "And you will oblige me if you do not call me dear!"

At that a little spit-fire it is! cried Madame Bovier. "Now I haven't told you all, but the fact is that Mr. Weston is in the very next room."

Lady Betty sprang up at that. "Oh! It cannot be?" "She watched the other's face eagerly, anxiously. Madame Bovier's evil smile was alone sufficient to send her heart into her shoes.

"Those letters you received were forged," she said. "See, I will show you whether he is my prisoner or not. Look at this—and this—"

She led the way along the passage to a window. This is the window of the next room to yours—his room. Now look. Speak a word and it will be the worst for you both!"

The room was dark, since its illumination came from the passage. But it was not long before Lady Betty could make out a mass of shadow which soon resolved itself into a chair and a table. A man sat at the table, and on his wrists something gleamed.

"Oh, that can't be Jimmy!" moaned Lady Betty. "But it is," Madame Bovier assured her. "See how the handcuffs gleam! There is another pair fastening his feet together. That is your love—and my husband! See—now he is moving. Now the light is on his face. Is it Jimmy Weston?"

Lady Betty's only answer was a moan. "Mind you don't attract his attention," Madame Bovier warned her. "It will be all the worse for him if you do. At present he is very quiet and amenable. I am afraid it would upset him if he saw you."

With that she turned Lady Betty back to her own room. "Why do you chain him up like a beast?" protested Lady Betty. "Madame Bovier laughed solidly. "You forget that I, too, love him. He is mine, and I intend to keep him."

"Is that the way you show your love in France?" cried Lady Betty scornfully. "I made Madame Bovier flame up dangerously."

"If he will not love me, he shall love no one!" she hissed. "I would cheerfully kill him first."

"I would far rather you killed me," said Lady Betty. "Perhaps he might love me then—were you going to say? That is enough. Forget him, curse you! or I will kill you as sure as you stand there. Now listen to me. You are coming with me, and it depends upon how you behave whether he has a good or a bad time here. You understand? If you try to escape, or try to make a scene with the idea of getting away, I shall take it out of him. I warn you that I am a woman with my word!"

And now Velasco came along the passage. "The taxi is at the gate," he announced. "Well, what is it to be?" demanded Madame Bovier. Lady Betty shook her head in perplexity.

"I will be quiet, if you promise," she said. "That's better! Well now, come along; we haven't a moment to lose. It may be to catch the boat train," said Madame Bovier, taking a firm hold of her arm and leading her out.

Count Velasco stood disconsolately at the gate watching the taxi go down the street. He cursed roundly, horribly. It was like Madame Bovier to create a situation of this sort! Why should she not have let him take the girl? She was a contrary, self-willed terrier, he decided. Then he crossed the street and entered the restaurant. He was asking himself what was the good of all this dangerous kidnapping. It was effective, to a degree, but so very risky. And what on earth they would do with Weston, he could not think.

He had ordered lunch, and was idly staring out of the restaurant window, when his attention was drawn to the presence of four men standing outside the factory gate. They looked suspiciously like plain-clothes detectives, he thought. Then two more came up, and as one of these was Michela, he no longer doubted that the police were about to raid the place. Without a moment's hesitation he crept out of the restaurant, and made his way into the comparative security of crowded Holborn.

Count Velasco had guessed rightly when he concluded that this was a police raid. One of the detectives had called the attention of the man who kept the gate, and by a trick had gained admittance. The man who had opened the gate was placed under arrest, and the inspector, after a hasty glance into the office with its interesting lot of suggestive papers, passed rapidly from room to room anxious to secure Madame Bovier and any of her accomplices. But they found none of these. They did find Jimmy, however, and quickly set him free.

"Where have you put Lady Betty, I wonder?" cried Michela anxiously. "Jimmy heard that."

"What on earth do you mean?" he demanded. "Oh, of course, you don't know," said Michela. "They have kidnapped her."

Jimmy sprang to his feet in spite of cramped muscles. "If they have kidnapped her! Where is she?" Michela shook his head. "She was here a few moments ago, so the gate-keeper says."

Michela helped him to reach the office, where they found Inspector Graveson. He had already ransacked the desk, and now turned to the cupboard.

"Nothing is here," he remarked. "But what's this—another door leading through the wall apparently?"

He found the door locked, and there was no key. And now something set him thinking. "I say Ford, which way does Holborn lie? Over there I think, does it not?"

After due deliberation, Sergeant Ford confirmed his opinion. "Well then it seems to me that this door connects up with the Cosmopolitan School of Languages! Go round immediately!"

Michela could think nothing but Lady Betty. He turned to the inspector.

"I suggest that you may find among these documents the address of the league's headquarters. If you will let me know, I will do my best to trace Lady Betty Alister."

"Call at Scotland Yard tomorrow and I will let you know if we have any clue."

And now Jimmy and Michela went off to The Daily Post offices in order to discuss matters with Lord Alister, and, if possible, find ways and means of finding Lady Betty.

Lord Alister admitted them instantly. "The birds have flown," cried Michela.

"But Madame Bovier was with me scarcely an hour ago!" exclaimed Lord Alister. "And Scotland Yard inform me that she went straight to the Cosmopolitan School of Languages—and I have not heard that she has left."

"Unfortunately that tells nothing," said Jimmy. "Inspector Graveson has discovered a door that connects one of her handkerchiefs."

"Good Heavens! What fools we've been!" cried Lord Alister. "And what about—?"

"Lady Betty?" broke in Michela. "We have fairly conclusive proof that she stayed there last night."

"My God! But where is she now?" "She was in the room next to mine. There was a rough bed, and the remnants of a meal. And we found one of her handkerchiefs."

He held the handkerchief out to Lord Alister, who nodded his recognition of the marking.

"What's to be done?" he groaned. "Then at a sudden thought he said, 'but what of Velasco? I believe Madame Bovier will do her best to keep her side of the bargain, but I fear Velasco.'"

"I saw him once or twice," said Jimmy. "He certainly was not there when we raided the place," put in Michela.

"No doubt the police will soon get a clue to their hiding place," said Lord Alister. "In the meantime we cannot do better than wait."

"It is not possible to wait," cried Michela. "I'll go to Victoria and London Bridge, and see if anyone like Lady Betty has gone by the boat train."

Lord Alister bowed. "Ring me up if you find anything."

Michela rushed away. Lord Alister sighed. "It is terrible to think of Betty at the mercy of these scoundrels."

"I say Ford, which way does Holborn lie? Over there I think, does it not?"

"You needn't fear," Jimmy assured him. "I'd give my life to see Betty back at home once more."

"A good idea," said Lord Alister, and shook his head commiseratingly. "I'm afraid you will live to repent bitterly your rash marriage. What on earth made you do it?"

Jimmy shrugged his shoulders.

"You might have known you had no right to do it," said Lord Alister testily. "I call it a piece of tomfoolery, and you ought to be thoroughly ashamed of yourself."

"I am! God knows it!" said Jimmy. "But I thought—well nothing mattered now that Betty didn't care."

"Ah well, the mischief is done now," said Lord Alister. "Run away to your lunch and be back again as soon as you can."

Little Theatre Movement Thriving Well in South

Era of Barns and Tumbledown Stores Passed and Many of the Playhouses Are Substantial and Beautiful—New Orleans Pioneer

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Aug. 2.—The Little Theatre movement in the South has passed the era of barns and tumble-down stores. One of a mere infant a few years ago, with stables and rambling buildings to house its productions, the movement now has become so firmly established that many of the community players present their plays in modern theatres, rivaling those of the professional stage.

New Orleans has the oldest Little Theatre in the South. It brings its work before 3,000 members in a charming playhouse which is the outgrowth of a group of dilapidated stores in the Vieux Carré. One of the outstanding productions of the recent season, its eleventh, was "The Mask and the Face," under direction of Walter Sinclair.

Art has built a $100,000 house in Dallas for the Little Theatre which has received more attention nationally, perhaps, than any other. Starting with nothing but ambition in 1920, the Dallas group won for three consecutive years the David Belasco trophy in the national Little Theatre tournament in New York, and now it has crowned its success with a new playhouse.

Under the direction of Oliver Hindell, it has won its struggle for a suitable place for its productions. It used an old chapel, then a restaurant, and later a small frame building. Ferenc Molnar's romance, "The Swan," was the first presentation in the new theatre.

In Birmingham the Little Theatre is only five years old, yet it owns a $60,000 theatre and has 1,000 members, under the direction of Bernard Sould. Like Dallas, Savannah, Galveston, Chattanooga, Charleston and most of the other groups, the Birmingham Little Theatre conducts an annual prize play contest.

The Memphis players still cling to "The Stable," which was once what its name indicates, and their plays are witnessed by large crowds. Recently they were offered $1,000 to take one of their plays to a neighboring city for a one-night's performance.

The Savannah Town Theatre group is completing a $50,000 building and is the foremost organization in Georgia. Atlanta is without a Little Theatre, but is conducting an interesting experiment in repertory company headed by Madge Kennedy, and recently the Theatre Guild of New York presented a series of productions. Now it has a second repertory organization, headed by Helen Menken and several other Broadway stars.

Charleston also has a new Little Theatre building. Among the other leading groups elsewhere in the South are those of Columbia, S.C.; Knoxville, Tenn.; Nashville, Tenn.; Annapolis, Md.; Shreveport, La.; Montgomery and Chattanooga, Ga.

Outstanding among the college players are the Playmakers of the University of North Carolina and the University of Louisville Players, Louisville, Ky. The Louisville organization has had unusual success with long-run productions and is self-supporting. During the last season the Carolina Playmakers invaded Broadway for a series of productions.

BOY FACED LION FOR SISTER As the result of his entering a lions' cage, the little sister of Alfred Garcia, a messenger boy of Sheffield, England, is now able to walk. She wrote the good news to him recently from the Royal National Orthopaedic Hospital, London, just after a new wing was dedicated to Prince Henry.

Estas, the slaver, had been a cripple from birth. Five years ago, Alfred, then 16½, heard that a lion tamer in a circus was offered $250 that no one else would dare to go into the den of lions which he entered at every performance. The lad walked into the cage and received $250, which he planned to use in curing five-year-old Estas.

A surgeon who heard Alfred's story, gave him services free and sent the girl to the hospital. Alfred used the $250 in providing extra comfort for the girl while there. Prince Henry praised the boy's devotion.

Test News From Wall Street

(Supplied by Branson, Brown & Co., Ltd.)

International Telephone & Telegraph organizes new Radio Company. Formation of subsidiary held to indicate expansion in communications.

Pennsylvania orders 550 steel refrigerator cars. Four companies get contract, totaling $5,000,000. Companies benefitting by orders are American Car & Foundry, Pressed Steel Car Co., Pullman and the General American Car Co.

Wall Street, which has been confronted for several days with a story that a new pool had been formed in John D. Rockefeller, was inclined to believe the tale, as it saw the stock jump a dozen points or more in a short space of time. The company did much better in the June quarter than in the initial three months of the year, more than doubling its net income of $12,579,575, only $2,000,000 more than the first quarter of the year.

L. W. Baldwin, president of the Missouri Pacific, declared operations are better throughout the system than they have been in years.

Hartman Corporation has made leases for stores in Kankakee and Racine for two additional units in its chain stores.

Case Threshing Machine is living up to its reputation as being one of the swiftest stocks on the market. The stock is slated for an early split up, according to all rumors, earnings are running at rate far in excess of what they were a year ago and only a limited amount of the present stock is available in the open market.

Recent buying of American Express stock is declared to be on report of important developments pending.

Cudahy Packing is expected to show earnings of between $8 and $10 a share on the common this year.

Talk of a split up of American Tobacco Co. "B" has again been revived.

Current indications point to a recession in both the volume of building and contracts and completions during the next few months, owing to the tightness of money, the Brookline Economic Service says.

DOWN JONES'S SUMMARY

Pennsylvania Sugar, Arbuckle Bros. and American Sugar quote refined sugar on a basis of 5.40c a pound for prompt shipment of thirty day contract. Federal Sugar quoted 5.40c, all off 15 points.

Bank of England made no change in discount rate of 4 1/2%.

American Rolling Mill Co. first half 1928 earnings, applicable to interest taxes and dividends were $3,226,339 against $2,941,280 in 1927 period.

Timken Detroit Axle in six months ended June 30 earned 70c a share, against 62c in 1927 period.

St. Paul handling 172,212 revenue freight cars in July against 164,369 same month last year.

Stockholders protective committee of Chesapeake & Ohio inform J. Harahan, president of Chesapeake & Ohio should divest itself of stock holdings in Erie and take immediate steps to acquire control of Virginian Railway. Committee also believes it would be better for Chesapeake & Ohio to acquire control of Virginian than Pere Marquette.

Diamond Match Co., six months ended June 30, net income $817,210 after depreciation, Federal taxes, etc., against $815,690 in first half of 1927.

Evans Auto Loading Co. stockholders authorized increase in capital stock to 200,000, five dollar par shares from 100,000. The stock dividend declared payable September 1, record August 15. Stock to be placed on $2.50 annual dividend basis, against $2.50 previously.

Nash Motors received in July orders for 31,049 cars. Shipments last month totalled 19,651 cars, second largest month in company's history and biggest July.

The continuous stream of favorable earnings reports for the quarter and for the first half of the year had favorable impression on the stock. The statement of the U. S. Steel Corporation and the optimistic remarks of James A. Farrell, president of the company were regarded significant.

Another indication of the business trend was seen in the figures of carloadings for the week of July 21. These showed a gain of 21,231 cars, as compared with the corresponding week of last year and represented what was virtually the largest increase of any week of the year.

Stocks of oil dropped 500,000 barrels in June, heavy gasoline withdrawals result in first decline reported since September.

American Locomotive and subsidiaries, six months ended June 30, net profit $1,502,702 after depreciation, Federal taxes, etc., equal after preferred dividends to 20c a share on 770,000 shares of common shares, against $2,485,784 or $1.48 a share in first six months of 1927.

STOCK OPINIONS

Hornbush & Weeks—We cannot get enthusiastic about bidding up for stocks whose market we had not anticipated, but believe that advantage should be taken of any technical correction which the present high money rates seem to offer to pick up such leading stocks as American Smelters, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Chrysler and Famous Players on attractive levels.

J. S. Bache—Under normal conditions it is expected that the supply of call funds will increase substantially during the next few days, thus bringing about lower rates and removing an obstacle from the path of obstruction.

New York Bonds

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—The bond market was dull and irregular today. The credit situation eased slightly, call money remaining at 7 per cent, a half point below yesterday's rate, but traders were hesitant, pending the weekly announcement of brokers' loans.

Interest remained largely in the all group, of which St. Paul's were a feature.

Oil continued strong on favorable trade developments. Dodge Brothers 6's found continued demand based on the Chrysler merger. Steels showed some strength under the leadership of Youngstown Sheet & Tube. United States Rubber 5's were also in demand. Andes Copper 7's were under pressure. Utilities were inclined to steady.

The foreign list was steady.

Winnipeg Grain

(Supplied by Branson, Brown & Co., Ltd.)

WINNIPEG, Aug. 2.—Wheat: At on Wednesday, the wheat futures market was very dull today with a light feature in trade, but at the same time there was an active demand for all grades of cash wheat exporters and shippers again being in the market, and with offerings being very light, spreads were from 1/2 to 2 cents better than at the close yesterday. No. 3 Northern was trading at 8 cents under, and No. 4 at 10 cents under.

October, which is 1/2 better than two days ago, and the foreigner now appears to be taking this much depressed grade, probably owing to the fact that other grades are pretty well cleaned up.

During the first period, prices were run up about one cent based on the cables which came considerably firmer than due. There was moderate buying by seaboard houses and a little short covering, but after this early demand was satisfied, the market became quiet and most of the early advance was lost, but still the market held firm with very little evidence.

Seaboard estimated wheat sales in all positions overnight around two million bushels largely Manitoba, but the bulk of the business was worked by the pool and was not reflected locally.

The weather in Western Canada has been mostly cloudy and cool with a light breeze and showers. The forecast is for mostly fine with a little higher temperatures. Sanford Evans statistical service crop report this morning states that the good prospects for wheat, oats, barley and flax have been well maintained during the past week, that flax is taking a normal course, and maturity approaching at a rate indicating that practically all grains will be ready for the binder during the first week of August.

Rust is not now considered a major menace, and many of the early fields are turning color. With a few serious rust spots, wheat production in Western Canada will exceed by a considerable margin the big crop of last year. It is now practically certain that the United States will have as much or a little more wheat than last year. We took for a steady market for the time being, but believe wheat can be sold on moderate terms at the present place. Winnipeg futures closed 1/2 higher.

Coarse Grains—Outside of a little export business in the coarse grain markets were very quiet. Prices were mostly a little firmer, largely in sympathy with the upward movement in the wheat market. Offerings were very light, there being no pressure on the market. Look for firm markets until new crops begin to move, which will bring hedging pressure. Coarse grains are considered too high in comparison with wheat. Oats closed 1/2 to 1/4 higher, barley 1/4 lower to 1/2 higher and rye 1/4 higher.

Flax—Displayed a little firmer tone after the decline of the past few days, but the trade volume was very small and crushers continue to show very little interest. Closing figures one cent higher.

Montreal Stock Letter

(Supplied by B.C. Bond Corp., Ltd.)

MONTREAL, Aug. 2.—Selling pressure was in evidence throughout the entire foreign session of the Montreal Stock Exchange yesterday, and all departments of the list registered declines of more or less serious proportions. Some of the June heavy gasolines withdrew support, and yielded slowly to the downward trend but in other cases reactions were rather pronounced.

The situation was considerably unsettled by the heavy liquidation that took place in Lyall Construction, following news of the serious disaster on the Welland Canal construction job. For a time the stock held fairly well, only a few points below its previous close, but a rush of selling orders, resulting from the impairment of the weak accounts, brought the price down precipitately to a close of 50 for a net loss of 13 points.

The two leaders, Canadian National and International Bank, made possibly the best showing of the session. Canadian National was accumulated on a gradual decline from 54 at the opening to 53, its close, down 3-4 while Nickel, after holding around 98, slipped off to 97, a decline of one point.

Power stocks gave way under the wave of liquidation. Power Corporation being most conspicuous, with a loss of 3 points to 68. Montreal Shaving fell 1-2 to 17-1/2 points to 88-1/2 and Quebec Power weakened 1-2 to 84. Fraser led the reaction in the papers, with a loss of 3 points to 85, while Abitibi maintained a firm tone, showing a fractional gain of 49-1/2. The preferred, however, was off a point to 90. Dominion Trust sold off to 96 and Steel of Canada was down 1-1/2 to 183.

FRACTURING ECONOMY

Little Ruth had gone alone to church and had been carrying a small bag of chocolate.

"Why, Ruth, where did you get the chocolate?" asked her mother.

"The little girl looked up in surprise.

"I bought it with the threepenny bit you gave me," she said. "The mitter met me at the door and got me in to buying."

Money Markets

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—Money, 3 per cent. Discount rates: Short bills, 4-1/2 to 4-1/4, three months' bills, 4-1/2 per cent.

AT NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—Copper, firm; spot and futures, 143-4. Iron, steady, unchanged. Tin, easy, spot, 47-7/8, futures, 47-00. Lead, steady, spot, 20-1/2, futures, 20-1/2. Zinc, spot, 20-1/2, futures, 20-1/2. Antimony, 9-7/8.

RUTH HOPE EARNS HUGE RETURNS

According to a message received by the financial firm of Miller Court & Co. in this city yesterday, high returns are being earned by Ruth Hope. The earnings of the fifty-ton daily capacity mill on the Ruth Hope property at Sandon are approximately $200 a day, which means an average value of between $18 and $20 a ton, after deducting all expenditures. The mine is earning $255,000 a year, which means a return of thirty per cent at present prices.

Willis—Are you going to have detectives to watch your daughter's wedding presents?

Gillis—No, the installment men will see to that.

AN APPROPRIATE GRACE
The little son of a minister had been very naughty, and as punishment he was not allowed to eat with the rest of the family. A small table was set aside for him.

On being given his food at this table for the first time the little chap said very solemnly:
"Lord, I thank Thee; Thou hast provided a table before me in the presence of mine enemies."

1. "THIS LOOKS LIKE A VERY INTERESTING TYPE OF VEGETATION OF THE FUNGUS VARIETY."

2. "IT BURNS!"

3. "YOWP!"

4. "HULLO, HAT!"

5. "I GO, BUT I COME BACK WITH POLICE TO ARREST YOU WHO MAKE INCENDIARY MOTIONS ON MY HEAD."

6. "I CAN'T UNTIE THESE KNOTS"

7. "THEN RUN FOR HELP!"

8. "HULLO, HAT!"

9. ?

10. "HI! DROP IT!"

11. "IF I CAN ONLY MANAGE THIS."

12. ?

13. "DIDN'T I TELL YOU TO RUN FOR HELP?"

14. "UH, YES, SIR. BUT LOOKUT, THIS HAT, AINT IT A CRACKERJACK?"

15. "MUY BUENO"
